Washington, D. C., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt will send to congress tomorrow or Tuesday a special message of great moment, destined to stir a storm of discussion in congress and in the country at large.

The message will recommend legislation to strengthen the navy by construction of new warships of all classes costing eventually a billion dollars or more. Last week the house naval affairs committee approved an appropriation of 553 millions for naval construction in the fiscal year 1939.

In justification of so large an increase in the naval establishment the President is expected to set forth his view of the disordered world and the obligation devolving upon the government to provide for adequate defense at home and protection of our interests abroad. Also the message is awaited for a more explicit statement of Mr. Roosevelt's conception of the rôle of the United States in world affairs.

Desires Leadership by U. S.

The hints he has given so far in his Chicago speech last fall and in his reply to Alfred M. Landon indicate the President believes the United States should take leadership among the powers in quarantining aggressor nations, such as Japan, and otherwise policing the world. Around this conception the battle over the big navy bill will rage between the internationalists supporting the President's view and the isolationists who would vote billions for defense of our shores but not one cent for policing the world.

The case for a vast enlargement of our sea defenses is stated by Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations.

"The present is not one when the United States safely can reduce its means for national defense without jeopardizing our national security," said Leahy. "The political conditions in the world, both in Europe and in the far east, are more threatening than at any time since 1918, and are distinctly worse than a year ago. In China a major conflict is in progress involving grave danger to American citizens. The civil war in Spain continues unabated, and the possibility of a general European conflict is ever present.

"Must Continue Defense."

"We must continue to maintain our existing national defense establishments at their highest efficiency, complete as soon as possible and practicable the projects now under way to improve or augment the existing establishments, and provide those features that still are lacking and which are vital to the efficiency of the national defense."

To authorize the contemplated increase in the navy it will be necessary to repeal or modify the Vinson-Trammel act, which limits our sea force to the tonnage fixed by the navy limitation treaties. These treaties have expired, and there is no bar to enlargement of our navy except the Vinson-Trammel act. If the President adopts the navy department's recommendation he will recommend a 20 per cent increase in the limitation of the Vinson-Trammel act which would permit the addition of three battleships, two plane carriers, three or four heavy cruisers, three or four light cruisers, twenty destroyers, and six submarines.

SENATE ROUSED BY CRIME WAVE IN WASHINGTON

Record Called Worst of Any U. S. City.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—A crime wave has struck the nation's capital with such sudden force that protests have been heard from the senate floor denouncing the city's record as worse than in any state or city government anywhere.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown Washington, D. C., police chief.

Front page headlines in Washington newspapers this week have read: "50 D. C. crimes in 48 hours," "Shop robbed third time as policeman steps out," "More policemen needed in D. C.," and "Bandits defy extra police in new raids."

Offenses range from purse snatching to armed holdups, kidnaping, safe crackings, assaults, thefts of automobiles, and house breaking. In one police lineup of suspects this week more than 200 victims identified eleven men as robbers.

Police Work Overtime.

Maj. Ernest W. Brown, chief of police, says the situation is due to the inadequacy of his force in a rapidly growing city. The entire force is working overtime, officers on day duty often returning for extra night service.

One liquor store was robbed so often that a special policeman was assigned to guard it. When the policeman left the store to make a routine call from the corner police box the store was robbed again — the third time in two weeks.

A government employé was forced into a car in front of his home, beaten, robbed, taken to Rock Creek park and dumped out.

Senators Compare Cities.

It was during debate of the anti-lynching bill in the senate that Senator Kenneth McKellar [D., Tenn.] brought up the question of Washington's crime situation. After reading a newspaper account of the many holdups and robberies, he put the paper down and exclaimed: "I do not think there is a state or city government anywhere that surpasses that crime record!"

The record he referred to showed, among other things, that in the twenty-four hour period from midnight Monday to midnight Tuesday, thirty-six robbery cases had been reported to police.

Senator Allen J. Ellender [D., La.] then took the floor to compare crime conditions here with those of New Orleans—a city with about the same population as Washington. He said that arrests for crime in Washington were nearly twice as great as in New Orleans.

Record Overshadows New York's.

Statistics show that Washington's record is worse even than that of New York City, whose crime ridden condition was revealed by the successful racket prosecution of Thomas E. Dewey, now district attorney of Manhattan.

Washington's 1938 population is estimated at 637,000, while New York, with 7,428,135, is more than ten times as large.

Despite this disparity in population, according to figures just made public by the federal bureau of investigation, there were more burglaries committed in Washington than in New York during the first two quarters of 1937.

Statistics Are Compared.

In the first three months of 1937 there were reported to police in Washington 860 house breaking cases. In New York in the same period 646 cases were reported. In armed holdups the two cities ran almost neck and neck—Washington, 248, and New York, 296. In the same period 1,815 automobiles were reported stolen in New York while 763 were reported stolen in Washington.

During the second three months of 1337 Washington reported 766 burglaries while New York had 752. In the third quarter New York forged a little ahead, 866 places being broken into while Washington's total was 768. Figures for the last quarter of 1937 are not available.

CAUGHT ON ANOTHER LIMB!

Gun Girl Robs Brother; Gives Cash to Lover

Fort Wayne, Ind., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—Lucille Martin, a waitress, 19 years old, committed robberies with a gun to finance her romance, she laughingly told police here this afternoon. She confessed three holdups last week.

First she held up the operator of a one-man street car and took $26 from him, then she took $50 from the manager of a chain grocery, and finally she stuck up her brother's restaurant in Walkerton, getting $29.93, all that was in the cash register. She kept only 50 cents of the total loot, she said, giving the rest to her man so he could entertain her.

In jail with Lucille is the man, Gale Richendollar, a cross-country truck driver, 32 years old, who has a wife and two children. Both are held under $10,000 bond, Lucille on a charge of armed robbery and Gale as an accessory.

Romance Starts in Restaurant.

Their romance began in the restaurant Lucille held up, in which she was a waitress after her brother, R. C. Martin, took her off her foster father's hands. The foster father, Dr. G. W. Reeves of Steelville, Mo., said she was incorrigible and asked Martin to give her a job.

Last April she and Richendollar went to Chicago, and a few days later police rescued her from a gas filled room in a south side rooming house. She would not tell why she tried to kill herself.

Later she gave up her job and came to Fort Wayne to be closer to Richendollar, who told her he made scarcely enough to support his wife and children, let alone entertain her.

At Christmas they drove to Steelville to visit Dr. Reeves, to whom Lucille introduced Richendollar as her husband. Then they drove to Miami, Fla., and Richendollar's wife sent them transportation home, according to Lucille.

Money Problem Grows Acute.

Last week the money problem again became acute. Monday Lucille asked Gale to drive her to the end of a car line in Fort Wayne. There she robbed the car man. Thursday he drove her to the grocery, and she robbed it. Then the two started for Walkerton. He waited at South Bend while she robbed the restaurant during her brother's absence.

Yesterday police went to the trucking firm for which Gale worked and found him and Lucille in the office. They seized her purse and discovered a small pistol in it.

Richendollar denied any part in the robberies and said Lucille told him the money she gave him was sent to her by her foster father. They will be arraigned tomorrow.

CAVE MAN INFERIORITY COMPLEX IS CREDITED FOR TABLE MANNERS

New York, Jan. 23.—(AP)—A caveman with an inferiority complex probably invented table manners to charm the ladies and shame the men who, though they brought home the bacon, were far from finicky when they ate.

That supposition was advanced by Dr. A. A. Brill, psychoanalyst, before the Gourmet society today.

Dr. Brill said there was a connection between manners and sex, as did Gelett Burgess, humorist and author on etiquet. "If I were a girl," Burgess said, "I never would encourage a young man until I had seen him eating. Put him in front of a plate of chowder or an ear of corn and he may prove to be a primordial beast."

The society began attacking an international dinner at 1:45 p. m. and still was going strong at 6:30.

3 BROTHERS HOLD REUNION IN JAIL AFTER 16 YEARS

Sixteen years ago Victor Kornicke left his brothers in Chicago to find a job. He never returned, and when he finally settled in Waukegan he was unable to find his family. Yesterday Victor and his two brothers, Walter and Vincent, held a reunion in the Lake county jail in Waukegan. The brothers had read in the newspaper that Victor was serving 20 days on a disorderly conduct charge following a fight. Victor is 44 years old and lives at 541 Market street, Waukegan. The brothers live at 2346 North Kimball avenue.

According to Dean Alfred J. Pearson of the liberal arts college, who questioned the students, they also volunteered to take such a test now if it is made available to them.

Two Children Drown; 3 Men Wriggle Free

Two boys were drowned, and three men almost shared their fate yesterday when they were trapped inside an automobile as it crashed through the ice in Pistakee bay, near McHenry, Ill., and sank in ten feet of water. The men crawled out of the car to safety.

Floyd Armistead.

Efforts to save the boys failed tragically when the last of six oxygen tanks gave out on an ambulance dash as they were only five miles from the Elizabeth Condell Memorial hospital, in Libertyville, where more tanks and inhalator squads were waiting.

The victims of the tragedy were Louis Albert Nelson Jr., 9 years old, 3039 Kenmore avenue, and John Adams Peyton, 6 years old, 823 Elmwood avenue, Evanston.

On Ice Fishing Trip.

The youngsters had accompanied their fathers, Louis A. Nelson Sr., and Howard Peyton, and several friends on an ice fishing holiday in Pistakee bay. With them were Floyd Armistead, 933 Wellington avenue, a baker; Harold G. Murphy, 18 years old, 127 Ridge avenue, Evanston, a high school pupil, and the latter's father, Edward Murphy.

They all drove out in Armistead's car over the ice to about 400 feet off a point called Baldy Knob, cut holes through the ice, and fished. After an hour some one suggested more fishing poles were needed, so Armistead and Murphy set out in the car for shore. The Peyton and Nelson boys went along. On the way they picked up another fisherman, Jess Lynn, 935 Leland avenue.

The ice appeared thick and safe—there were probably 500 other cars of fishermen on the ice—until they reached the center of the bay. There they struck buckles, or thin ice. The first warning Armistead and the others had came when the front wheels cracked through the ice and the rear wheels did likewise. In a few seconds the entire car plunged to the bottom.

Wriggles Through Window.

"All I can remember," said young Murphy, "is that we went down suddenly. We hardly knew what happened. I smashed a window and wriggled out."

Armistead and Lynn fought their way out of the car somehow, and then dived down after the trapped boys. Murphy, suffering from a cut right arm, also dived. The boys' fathers, who saw the accident, frantically dived again and again after their sons, and finally Peyton and another rescuer, Frank Balla, 12050

Ex-Dean's Fast Ends; Forced to Eat at Hospital

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 23.—(AP)—Isreal Harding Noe's 22 day fast by which he hoped to attain immortality on earth came to a dramatic and involuntary end tonight when he was taken to a hospital for feeding by force.

Secrecy guarded the movements of physicians at the hospital room to which the 47 year old ousted dean of St. Mary's Episcopal cathedral was taken. They would not discuss what medical steps were being taken to save his life. First efforts were directed at getting liquids into his system.

Although hospital attachés said the Rev. Mr. Noe collapsed at the deanery, he was reported conscious later tonight by a member of the cathedral chapter who was permitted to enter his room.

Talks to an Attorney.

"The dean talked intelligently and clearly," Attorney Hal Buchanan said. "He told me it was against his wishes to put anything into his stomach. He said he had agreed to go to the hospital at the suggestion of friends, but only for the purpose of resting and getting away from so many visitors. He was not in a coma when I saw him. Nor did he appear to be in a critical condition as reported when taken to the hospital."

The collapse of the clergyman who sought to prove that man could, with the help of God, "put on the fullness of the Godhead bodily," had been anticipated since Wednesday. That night Mr Noe told his wife, Mrs. Ellen Cambios Noe, with whom he was reconciled two weeks before Christmas when she returned to the deanery with their two children, Margaret, 13, and Eugenia, 11, that he was unable to shave himself.

Stunned by His Ouster.

Mrs. Noe was told by a physician that "the end is near." He told her to be prepared. Thursday, when Bishop James M. Maxon, recovering from a serious illness, removed him as dean of the church he had served for 17 years, his family and friends expressed fear he could not survive the day. He was stunned, but showed amazing recuperative power.

The clergyman, however, did go into greater seclusion and saw, from then until his collapse, only members of his family and closest friends.

The former dean today sat in a pew at the cathedral and heard a pulpit criticism on "vagaries" such as his search for immortality through abstinence and prayer. The Rev Royden Keith Yerkes of the Episcopal University of the South, at Sewanee, Tenn., declared priests of the faith were faced with temptation to give their own construction to the word of God in their efforts to portray the life of Christ.

IGOE HASTENS BACK HOME TO PUSH ROSS CASE

Predict Court Action on Killing Today.

Michael L. Igoe, United States attorney, will return this morning from Washington to demand the execution of John Henry Seadlund for the kidnaping and murder of Charles S. Ross. Igoe announced yesterday that he will direct the prosecution personally.

Although strictest secrecy surrounded the government's plans, there were many indications that action would begin today against Seadlund, knowr under his alias of Peter Anders until his true identity was disclosed Saturday night when he was brought here from St. Paul.

Other Developments.

Meanwhile there were these other developments:

1. Eight G-men were engaged in an all night search of the wilds around Spooner, Wis., in which the body of Ross was found, for another man said to be an important figure in the case.

2. Miss Florence Freihage, who was with Ross when he was kidnaped last Sept. 25, viewed the killer, but was unable positively to identify him, since it is believed to have been Seadlund's accomplice, James Atwood Gray, who actually took Ross from her side.

3. J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the nation's G-men, was quoted in New York as having said that Seadlund and Gray once planned to kidnap Jerome [Dizzy] Dean, Joe Di Maggio, and Lou Gehrig, baseball stars.

Two Courses Open.

Two courses are open to the government in the prosecution. One is to arraign the outlaw under the so-called Lindbergh kidnaping law before Edwin K. Walker, United States commissioner, and seek indictment by the federal grand jury later. The other is to go before the grand jury immediately to ask Seadlund's indictment.

Because the outlaw already has confessed kidnaping and killing Ross, and killing the other kidnaper, Gray, and led the G-men to the bodies, it was expected that Seadlund would plead guilty.

Grand Jury Summoned.

The last of the physical evidence was believed to have been carried into the G-men headquarters in the Bankers building at 105 West Adams street yesterday when three government agents laden with shopping bags, grips, and boxes slipped through a side door. Clothing, part of it believed to have been Ross', could be seen protruding from the bags. The men carried shovels, presumably used at the dugout hideaway.

While officials refused to say whether or not they would act today, it was known that Warren Canaday, Igoe's first assistant, had summoned the grand jury to reconvene today, although it had no work other than the Ross case before it.

Gives Full Time to Case.

Igoe said in New York yesterday: "I am returning to devote my entire time to the Ross case."

The eight G-men at Spooner were coöperating with Sherif Robert Willis of Washburn county. They were understood to be seeking a resident of the region who aided Gray in selecting a spot for the hideway near Spooner and the other hideway near Emily, Wis.

Souvenir hunters flocked to the Spooner dugout yesterday. By mid-afternoon, every piece of the timber with which the dugout was lined had been carried away. Cars became stalled in the treacherous dirt road leading to the scene. The congestion halted other automobiles until at one time 300 were lined up on the road, unable to move.

Miss Freihage Talks to G-Men.

Both Miss Freihage and Edmund S. Cummings Jr., the Ross family lawyer who helped arrange payment of the $50,000 ransom, were summoned to the G-man headquarters in Chicago. Although it had been generally believed that Seadlund himself forced Ross out of the Ross car on Wolf road near Franklin Park, it became apparent during Miss Freihage's visit that it was Gray who did this.

Miss Freihage recalled that the gunman who came to the car seemed in the darkness to have wavy blond hair. He also appeared young. This description came much nearer to fitting Gray, a red haired youth of 19, than the dark haired Seadlund. Moreover, it was recalled, the gunman who took Ross into the kidnapers' car said, "the boss" had sent for him, and Gray is known to have been under Seadlund's domination.

Kidnaping Night Recalled.

Reports that a blonde woman was being sought as the person who pointed Ross out to the kidnapers were set at rest when Miss Freihage's story of the events preceding the kidnaping were recalled. She and Mr. and Mrs. Ross had planned the night of the kidnaping to dine in St. Charles. But Mrs. Ross, suddenly ill, urged the others to go on without her. They found they were too early when they reached St. Charles, and decided on the spur of the moment to go on to the Fargo hotel in Sycamore, where they eventually dined.

Thus, those close to the case say, it would have been impossible for any one to have known their plans and inform a kidnaping gang. Moreover, other motorists were stopped along the same road on which Ross was kidnaped as he and Miss Freihage were returning that night and G-men say they have established that Seadlund and Gray were roaming the road, looking for robbery victims. This all supports Seadlund's own story, the G-men said, that he decided without premeditation to kidnap Ross after stopping him to rob him.

Ransom Notes Delivered.

New information was disclosed also regarding the ransom notes. They were five in number, the first the appeal for payment of $5,000 that Ross wrote, unaware that the kidnapers were going to raise the figure to $50,000. The other four, it was learned, bore directions for payment of the ransom and carried out the negotiations which were finally agreed upon when Mrs. Ross published a newspaper advertisement offering a car for sale for $500. The $500 was the kidnapers' way of designating the $50,000 ransom, just as the $250 mentioned in another advertisment inserted by the family meant the $25,000 she at first offered.

The second advertisment, published after the kidnapers had refused the $25,000, read:

AUBURN—'36 SEDAN: GOOD CONDITION; no defects; $500. George J. Kukovac, 1161 W. 19th street, Chicago.

Kukovac was the motorcycle messenger chosen to deliver the money.

$5,000 Might Have Been Enough.

Those close to the case said yesterday that because of Seadlund's life as a small time robber, and his unfamiliarity with handling large sums, it was probable that he would have taken $5,000 had Mrs. Ross stood firm in her refusal to pay the amount asked. It was reported, however, that she quickly dropped her opposition to paying and gave the entire $50,000 in the vain hope of saving her husband's life.

Seadlund was said to be a miserly man, who had little use for large sums of money and apparently little need for it. He lived in cheap hotels and spent little, even after he got the ransom.

Mother on Way Here.

Seadlund's mother, Mrs. Paul Seadlund, last night was reported to be on her way to Chicago in company of G-men from the family home at Ironton, Minn.

Ross' body arrived by train yesterday at Harvard, Ill., from Spooner. It was brought secretly into Chicago in a herse and taken to a mortuary. Private funeral services are being planned.

The body of Gray, who also was slain by Seadlund, will be shipped from Spooner tonight to Providence, Ky., his former home. Coroner Harry W. Dahl at Spooner said that Gray's sister, Mrs. J. W. Scott of Providence, made arrangements for shipping the body.

WOMAN KILLED BY AUTO AS SHE CROSSES STREET

Mrs. Anna Lindgren, 75 years old, 3600 Maple Square avenue, last night was fatally injured by an automobile in front of 3158 North Clark street, where she was crossing the street. She died early today in the Illinois Masonic hospital. The driver was Wilson Malick, 1953 Cleveland avenue.

No automobile fatalities were reported in Cook county in the twenty-four hours preceding 4 p. m. yesterday. The number of persons killed in the county since Jan. 1 remained at seventy-three. Of these fifty-eight were killed in Chicago, where 996 persons were injured in the same period.

Third Housewife in Week Held Up in Crystal Lake

Spurred by the third holdup in a week of a housewife, Crystal Lake authorities were searching yesterday for a man believed to have committed the three robberies as well as another at Woodstock. The latest victim is Mrs. John Hubert, 25 years old. The robber was about to take the money from a child's bank when a knock on the door frightened him away empty handed. The other two Crystal Lake women victims live in the same block.

HAWAII SHAKEN BY QUAKE; FEAR VOLCANIC ACTION

HONOLULU, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Scientists intensified their vigilance over the Hawaiian Islands' volcanoes tonight following a preliminary report that a severe earthquake last night might have originated under famed Mauna Loa crater. All of the seven islands were shaken by the quake.

Commander J. H. Peters of the coast geodetic survey, who said it was the "worst earthquake in eleven years," expressed opinion the temblor, which began at 10:05 p. m. [4:35 a. m. Sunday, C. S. T.] and lasted two minutes, originated between 200 and 225 miles southeast of here. This would put the epicenter in the vicinity of the occasionally active volcano on the island of Hawaii.

"There might have been an explosive eruption within Manua Loa, but I cannot tell definitly until reports are received from the volcano region," Commander Peters said. Throughout the islands minor damage, such as falling crockery and plaster, was reported.

GIRL BATTLES ICY WATER TO SAVE SISTER AND DOG

Plandome, N. Y., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—Nancy Whitmore, 12 years old, was saved from drowning today when her sister, Jane, 21 years old, rescued her after she broke through the ice on Manhasset bay in Long Island Sound. The girls are daughters of Carl Whitmore, a wealthy New York telephone company executive.

The younger girl broke through the ice 150 feet from shore when she went to the aid of her spaniel, Piny. Jane, an expert swimmer, who was on the beach of the Whitmore estate, ran on the ice until it began to crack, then crawled to the hole where Nancy was struggling.

The ice broke when Jane tried to pull her sister out. Treading water, Jane lifted her sister upon the ice and then rescued the dog. Almost exhausted, she was barely able to pull herself back on the ice.

Two Firemen, Overcome by Smoke, Recovering

Firemen William McDonald, 39 years old, 5212 Patterson avenue, and Thomas J. Donahue, 35 years old, 5236 Congress street, who were overcome with smoke while fighting a fire in a three story frame building at 728 South Carpenter street Saturday night, were reported improved in the Presbyterian hospital yesterday.

RUMANIAN JEWS UNABLE TO FIND REFUGE ABROAD

Palestine Nearly Filled, Zionist Leaders Told.

BUCHAREST, Jan. 23.—(AP)—A pessimistic report on the possibility of mass migration of Rumanian Jews to Palestine to escape the anti-Semitic program of the new government was delivered today to the Rumanian Zionist congress by Julius Berger of Jerusalem.

He said there was room for a few more architects and engineers but other intellectuals were not needed. He warned emigrating merchants they must take capital to Palestine which is difficult under Rumanian foreign exchange laws.

Berger and other speakers expressed doubt that emigration of considerable numbers to Australia and Mexico would be feasible. Nevertheless the congress planned to ask a greater immigration quota in Palestine.

Palestine to Take Few.

The London Zionist organization telegraphed the congress that 200 more Rumanian Jews could be accepted in Palestine under the 1937 quota if each could take $500 in cash.

A new Rumanian government decree today forbade publication of "official documents not intended for the public." It was generally believed this was aimed at Nicolas Titulescu, former premier and foreign minister who had said he intended to write about his long experience as foreign minister.

[Titulescu was forced out of the foreign ministry in August, 1936, by opposition to his reported desire to have Rumania form an alliance with soviet Russia.]

Want Professors Ousted.

The minister of culture of the new nationalist government, in another order, forbade religious instruction to Jewish children in public schools. Heretofore rabbis visited the schools once a week for lectures.

Medical students of Bucharest university notified university authorities they would strike if several Jewish assistant professors were not dismissed by Tuesday.

FALL INJURIES FATAL.

Mrs. Pearl Pelinger, 75 years old, 3312 North Ridgeway avenue, died yesterday in the Grant hospital of injuries incurred in a fall last Nov. 30.

Protests on the floor of the senate have called attention to a crime wave which has struck the nation's capital. That the situation is serious is evident when population and crime statistics for Washington are compared to similar figures for New York.

RECLUSE SOUGHT AS KIDNAPER DIES IN POLICE FIGHT

A recluse who allegedly kidnaped a small boy was shot and killed by Brighton Park police last night in a fight in mud flats near 37th street, just west of the south branch of the Chicago river. Two policemen were injured. Naturalization papers in the man's pockets indicated he was Joso Perekovich, 52 years old, formerly of 1721 South Racine avenue.

He had been living in a dugout on the river bank. Just before dark yesterday he stopped three brothers at Ashland and Archer avenues, accused them of stealing from him and carried the youngest one away. The boy was Martin Laczewski, 5 years old, 2856 Archer avenue. He let the boy go after a few minutes, and the youngster was found by a railroad watchman.

Meantime Policemen Louis Vesely, William Hickey, Robert Fox and Joseph Hamlin found the recluse at his dugout. He denied kidnaping the boy, and when the policemen tried to arrest him he slashed Hickey on the hand with a knife and also injured Vesely before he was shot.

AUTO CRASHES THROUGH ICE; 2 BOYS DROWNED

3 Men Wriggle Free in Fishing Trip Tragedy.

South Bishop street, brought them up.

Dr. Bruce N. Balding of Elgin, who had arrived on the scene with his medical kit, administered adrenalin to the youngsters. They showed a faint response that indicated they might be saved. Four oxygen tanks were raced over by the Fox Lake and Antioch fire departments, and these were used with artificial respiration. The great crowd of onlookers threatened for a time to cave in a large patch of ice, and as a precaution the boys were moved to shore by sled, where the fight for their lives continued.

Two More Tanks of Oxygen.

An ambulance finally arrived, carrying two more tanks of oxygen. Then an emergency dash to the Condell hospital, about 15 miles away, was begun while Dr. Balding administered the oxygen. The Peyton boy, he said, still showed signs of life.

Just five miles short of the hospital the oxygen gave out. Dr. Balding worked desperately but in vain with adrenalin and artificial respiration. Inhalator squads at the hospital took up the work, with the same result.

"I'm sure I could have saved the Peyton boy, and probably the Nelson youngster, too," Dr. Balding told Coroner John L. Taylor of Lake county, last night, "if the oxygen had held out."

HAT CLEW TO ROBBER WHO SLEW STREET CAR CONDUCTOR IN HOLDUP

Police based their search for the robber who early yesterday shot and killed Truman H. Hanmer, conductor on the 47th street surface lines car, on a hat left by the slayer.

Truman Hanmer.

The robber boarded the car at California avenue and drew a revolver when Hanmer asked for his fare. Hanmer resisted, and the robber struck the conductor on the head with his revolver. As Hanmer fell, the robber fired a bullet through his heart.

The killer jumped from the car and fled in an automobile containing two other men. Hanmer, who was 55 years old and lived at 5920 South Artesian avenue, had worked for the Surface Lines for twenty-four years. His widow and two children survive. Police said that three robbers previously had obtained $49 from Lawrence Cronin, conductor on a Wentworth avenue car at 47th street.

Duce's Son, 2 Other Flyers Take Off for Rio de Janeiro

ROME, Jan. 24.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini's son, Bruno, and two other Italian aviators took off in three trimotor airplanes today on the first leg of a group flight to Rio de Janeiro. The premier's son, Col. Attilio Biseo, and Maj. Nino Moscatelli left Guidonia military airport two minutes apart, with Dakar, Senegal, as their objective. From Dakar they intended to fly across the South Atlantic to Natal, Brazil.

TWO AMBULANCE DRIVERS TO TELL OF 'KISS' SLAYING

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—Two ambulance drivers are scheduled to testify tomorrow when the Superior court trial is resumed of Paul A. Wright for the slaying of his wife, Evelyn Wright, 29, years old, and his friend, John Kimmel, airport executive. The drivers, Harry T. Meredith and Richard W. Garman, are scheduled to tell of a dash through the night to the Wright home in Glendale and the subsequent events. Mrs. Wright died en route to the hospital, while Kimmel lived eight hours.

Fifteen prosecution witnesses occupied the stand during the three days of prosecution testimony last week. Forty exhibits were submitted by the prosecution, ranging from shells from Wright's pistol to a large velvet drape pierced by a bullet.

INSISTS POLICE ARE VINDICATED OF BOMB CHARGE

Two Face Wire Tapping Hearing Today.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—Vindication of his entire force of officers of any implication in the attempted bomb assassination of Harry Raymond, private detective, was claimed by Police Chief James Davis tonight at the end of a twenty-four hour inquiry.

Earl Kynette, acting captain in charge of the police special intelligence unit, promised that, shortly, he would make arrests which will completely vindicate him and his aide, D. M. Draper, and his entire squad of implication in the bombing, and provide a solution to the case.

Face Hearing Today.

Kynette and Draper were booked last week on charges of having tapped wires leading to Raymond's home shortly before he was wounded seriously by a bomb that exploded under his car as he stepped on the starter Jan. 14. Both are at liberty under $2,000 bond.

The two men are due to appear tomorrow before Superior Judge Kincaid for hearing on a writ of habeas corpus.

Sought for questioning for nearly a week in connection with the Raymond bombing, Roy J. Allen, a member of Kynette's squad, eturned today reporting to Kynette that he had been vacationing and is prepared to answer any and all questions.

At the same time District Attorney Buron Fitts announced he is coöperating with Superior Judge Kincaid in an effort to begin selection of the county grand jury Tuesday to make an investigation of the whole affair.

Bomb Charge Most Serious.

According to Fitts, the wire tapping charges against Kynette and Draper are insignificant as compared with the investigation of the attempt to kill Raymond.

Detectives still were puzzled by an attempt to assassinate Whitney Wilhelmy, aviation mechanic, outside his Glendale home Saturday night. Wilhelmy recently filed a $36,000 damage suit against Raymond charging false arrest in connection with a stolen automobile radio. Two shots were fired at him as he and Mrs. Wilhelmy were entering their automobile.

Raymond, still suffering from 150 wounds received when the bomb exploded under the hood of his automobile, was removed to another hospital today. Physicians predicted his recovery.

Recall Mae West Robbery.

It was noted as a coincidence today that the same officials concerned in the Raymond bombing investigation are also connected with the case of Harry O. Voiler, 46 years old, former Chicago night club operator, who was brought back here from Miami a few days ago to face charges of complicity in the $15,000 jewel robbery of Mae West in 1932.

Reported still pending on the Superior court docket is a suit for $51,351 damages brought by Voiler in 1933 against Fitts and others charging false indictment against him on a vagrancy charge.

John Oliver, who is now attorney for Capt. Kynette in the wire tapping case and who then was a deputy in Fitts' office, handled most of the prosecution of Voiler. Kynette did the investigating in the case.

May Become Key Witnesses.

Oliver is also attorney for Wilhelmy in his case against Raymond.

If Voiler presses his suit Kynette and Oliver would be key witnesses for Fitts.

And if the gunman who shot at Wilhelmy is apprehended and tried Oliver, as Wilhelmy's attorney, would be aligned with Fitts and also is cast as the plaintif's counsel in the mechanic's suit against Raymond and the auto club.

FOUND UNCONSCIOUS; $500 IN SHOE.

Nick Horaschak, 48 years old, 1551 South California avenue, a laborer, was found unconscious, suffering from a skull fracture, in the rear of 1806 17th street early yesterday. Five $100 bills were found in a shoe when he was taken to the county hospital.

Murder Trial Today

RUDOLPH SZCZYTOWSKI.

Mrs. Ada Szczytowski, 31 years old, mother of three children, who shot and killed Miss Irene Kirstein, 26 years old, 3530 Wolfram street, last Nov. 22, will go to trial on a charge of murder before Judge Rudolph Desort in Criminal court today. The shooting occurred in the bakery of her husband, Rudolph Szczytowski, at 1352 North Paulina street.

At the time of the shooting Mrs. Szczytowski said that she shot Miss Kirstein, employed as a clerk in the bakery, to end a romance between the young woman and her husband.

Attorney Roland Libonati said his client would plead self defense. Assistant State's Attorney Julius Sherwin said that the state would not seek the death penalty but would ask the jurors to fix the punishment suitable to the crime.

JOE, GEORGE, AND FRANK, OR THREE MEN ON A TAXI

Joe, George, and Frank of the West Madison street Joes, Georges, and Franks, tumbled out of a taxicab into the arms of Policeman George Yocum at 16th and Peoria streets Saturday night. They explained about it in the Maxwell street station yesterday.

Frank, better known as Bottles, blushed and said he borrowed the cab without asking from in front of 531 North Clark street, where he was calling on friends. He said he picked up Joe and George, two other members of his social set, and drove home to Madison street.

Then they decided it would be a good idea to play taxi and take all their friends for a ride. The fare, they said, was one bottle of whatever it was made them think it was a good idea.

16 SMOKE LAW COMPLAINTS TO BE HEARD TODAY

Charged with violating the smoke ordinance, the owners or operators of sixteen buildings, including Joseph J. Butler, superintendent of the bureau of streets, have been directed to appear today in the office of Frank A. Chambers, head of the Chicago department of smoke inspection and abatement, for hearings on the complaints.

Dwellers near a city owned garage at 2555 North Ashland avenue asserted it is a smoke nuisance. As the building is used to house equipment of the city department of streets and electricity, a complaint was lodged against Butler.

Location of Offenders.

The offenders and their locations follow: Gus Tannert, 2245 Burling street; Baltimore and Ohio railroad, 14th street and Wolcott avenue; F. H. Two Railroads Cited.

Representatives of the Baltimore and Ohio and New York Central railroads also will appear on complaints that various locomotives belched heavy smoke for periods of one minute or more.

The Arcadia auditorium at 4444 Broadway and the Medinah club, 505 North Michigan avenue, were to be investigated for violations today after smoke was reported pouring from their chimneys yesterday.

Saturday Mr. Chambers drafted an order directing the operator of the Irving Park Y. M. C. A. at 4251 Irving Park boulevard to have the smoke indicator repaired, to employ a full time fireman, and to use only high grade, low ash coal in an effort to abate the smoke nuisance at that location.

Mary L. Snite.

A wedding reception will be held in the Snite home at Miami Beach where young Fred has lived in a steel and glass respirator since arriving from Chicago several months ago. He was stricken with infantile paralysis in the orient in 1935.

Mr. and Mrs. Snite announced their daughter's wedding plans today. The family, from River Forest, Ill., is living at its Miami Beach winter home.

Plan Food Crop Cut

Government officials have made tentative arrangements for a reduction in food crop plantings of between 15,000,000 and 30,000,000 acres. This map gives an idea of how much of Illinois would be affected if the nation's entire reduction were in this state.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23.—(AP)—Tentative crop control arrangements for the 1938 season provide for a reduction of between 15,000,000 and 30,000,000 acres in plantings of the major food and fibre crops, agriculture department officials said today.

Such a reduction would involve between 5 and 10 per cent of the total acreage planted to the same crops in 1937. Officials said that most of the cut would be in cotton and wheat—crops of which the nation now has huge supplies.

Under present arrangements, which the farm bill now pending in congress is expected to change little in so far as they apply to plantings, farmers would be paid benefits from a $440,000,000 soil conservation fund for withdrawing a fixed percentage of their land from the major crops and placing it in soil-building crops, such as grasses and clovers.

2 BILLION SPENT ON RELIEF IN 11 MONTHS OF 1937

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—Government agencies spent $2,155,417,000 for public relief in the first eleven months of 1937, a decline of $251,821,000 from the corresponding period of 1936, the social securit board announced today.

Payments to relief recipients in November were $189,671,000, a drop of $36,000,000 from November, 1936, but $15,000,000 more than in October, 1937.

The figures include payments to recipients under all types of public assistance.

Sneezes Cut to Three a Minute; Victim Better

Alameda, Cal., Jan. 22.—(AP)—Emergency hospital attendants reported Mrs. Betty Grose, sneezing young housewife, resting easier today. Mrs. Grose's attack of sneezing, which started Thursday night, had subsided to only an occasional sneeze, the attendants said. When brought to the hospital she was sneezing on the average of once every twenty seconds. Her trouble was diagnosed as an acute nasal irritation.

HOPE TO FORCE CHISELERS OFF RELIEF ROLLS

Action Promised by Joint Legislative Committee.

Action intended to force chiselers off the relief rolls was promised yesterday by members of a joint committee of the legislature who said they planned a meeting in Chicago with Works Progress Administration officials as soon as the Illinois Council of Public Assistance and Employment makes its report.

Alfred E. Eden, secretary of the state senate as well as of the committee appointed to study the relief problem, said the first step would be a classification of reliefers so that those with the largest families would be drawn for WPA work first. Senator George C. Dixon of Dixon and Representative Calvin D. Johnson of East St. Louis said they would seek to bring that about within a week.

Meeting is Sought.

"Our committee will seek a meeting with WPA officials probably this week or next," said Representative Johnson. "I understand the Council on Public Assistance and Employment is to issue its report within the next ten days, and that it will contain startling facts."

Secretary Eden said the present limitation on expenditures for investigation of relief applicants adds from 12 to 25 per cent to the cost of relief. Supervisors haven't the means or the facilities to investigate properly and to keep chiselers off the rolls, he said.

Hospitalization Costs High.

A problem in Springfield, he said, is the cost of hospitalization and medical care for reliefers. It is nearly 20 per cent of the entire expenditure, compared with a cost of 7 or 8 per cent in other parts of the state.

Senator Dixon said the true story of the relief situation is difficult to obtain because Republicans and Democrats fight over it in every village and township in the state, and it is an issue in every local election. The council, of which Walter L. Gregory of Chicago is chairman, may shed considerable light on the situation, he said.

PROSECUTION OF MORE OIL FIRMS PONDERED BY U.S.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23.—(AP)—Officials of the justice department said today that no decisions as to court action had been reached in two other anti-trust investigations of oil companies similar to that which led to the Madison, Wis., trials.

A jury at Madison yesterday convicted sixteen oil companies and thirty individuals of having conspired to raise and fix gasoline prices in ten middle western states in 1935 and 1936.

The other investigations are under way on the east and west coasts.

Two attorneys from the department's anti-trust division have been engaged for several months in examination of books of major oil companies operating on the west coast. A spokesman for the department said this investigation was well advanced, but added there has been no decision as to whether the findings warant civil or criminal actions.

REBEL AIRMEN KILL 56; BOMBS FALL IN FRANCE

Valencia Bombarded by Five Warships.

BARCELONA, Spain, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Civilian populations of loyalist Spain suffered heavily today under rebel air bombing raids and an attack on Valencia by five warships.

The warships, said to include two Italian destroyers sailing under false Spanish names, stood five miles off shore and poured forty shells into Valencia, former capital of loyalist Spain. The government said little damage was done. The attack was the first naval activity in recent months of the civil war.

At least fifty-six persons were killed and more than seventy wounded in the rebel raids on four towns of Catalonia near the French frontier. Fourteen rebel planes left thirty dead and seventeen wounded at Puigcerda, border rail center. The raiders passed over French territory twice and dropped eleven bombs on French soil. One wrecked a hut in which two mobile guardsmen had taken cover.

Urges Paris to Act.

The prefect of the Pyrenees-Orientales department immediately asked the Paris government to place anti-aircraft batteries on the frontier and assign a squadron of planes to fight off any future incursions. A formal French protest to the rebel government was expected after an investigation of the attack.

Twenty-six of the dead were found in the ruins of the Puigcerda railway station and in an adjoining hotel. Four persons were missing and feared dead.

The wounded were carried across the border to the French towns of Bourg-Madame and Fontromeu. Physicians went from Perpignan, France, to treat them. Many panic stricken persons of Puigcerda ran across the border into France.

The planes which bombed Puigcerda also bombed Seo d'Urgel, near the border of the tiny republic of Andorra, inflicting an unreported number of casualties.

Strike Back at Seville.

Fourteen persons were killed and fifty wounded in two raids on Figueras, also near the French frontier. Twice flights of six planes visited the town, dropping a total of forty-five bombs. Twelve more persons were killed in a rebel raid on Port Rosas, on the coast south of Perpignan.

A government communique announced that ten loyalist planes had retaliated for seven days of bombings by dropping five tons of explosives on Seville, 350 miles south of Madrid, and returned safely to their field.

[A Salamanca dispatch said 7 persons were killed, 20 wounded, and numerous houses demolished in the Seville raid.]

The loyalist air forces already had raided Salamanca Friday in retaliation for the disastrous bombing of Barcelona earlier in the week. Travelers reaching Gibraltar today said 225 persons were killed, more than 400 wounded and the barracks of a German regiment wrecked in the Salamanca raid.

Eye-witnesses of the raid on Salamanca, rebel headquarters in northwestern Spain, said five squadrons of government bombers dropped 35 heavy bombs in and near Salamanca in 40 minutes. Two 550 pound bombs fell in the Plaza Mayor near the Grand hotel, which houses foreign missions to the rebel government. One bomb tore a hole 150 yards wide and destroyed a three story building.

Americans Destroy Moors.

HENDAYE, France, at the Spanish Frontier, Jan. 23.—(AP)—A battalion of American volunteers in the Spanish civil war was reported today to have destroyed two squadrons of Gen. Francisco Franco's Moorish cavalry on the Teruel front.

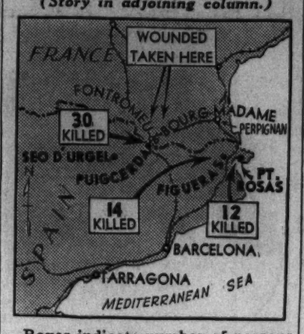
The Moors attempted a flank attack in the rebel drive to recapture Teruel but galloped into the fire of the government volunteers.

A communique from Barcelona said the Americans displayed the "highest bravery." Fatalities among the Americans were not reported.

The government bulletin said Franco's drive to wrest Teruel from the army that captured it Dec. 21 had developed into fighting "without quarter" outside the city.

Four Towns Bombed

(Story in adjoining column.)



Boxes indicate number of persons killed when four Spanish towns were raided yesterday by Spanish rebel planes. The number killed at Seo d'Urgel was not reported. Loyalist planes raided Seville in retaliation. Five rebel warships shelled Valencia.

Two Gunmen Try to Rob Church; Foiled by Priest

Two armed men attempted yesterday to rob the Rev. Benigio Pigato, pastor of Our Lady of Pompeii church, 1224 Lexington street. They appeared at the rectory door, and when faced by the priest demanded the collections taken at mass. Father Pigato, ignoring their guns, turned and ran through a hallway leading from the rectory into the church. The bandits fled.

CUBA TO DEPORT FRENCH GUIANA PENAL REFUGEES

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 23.—Five French Guina refugees who reached Santiago in a frail craft three days ago were ordered today by national immigration authorities to be deported.

The group, now being held at Santiago, will be brought to Havana, where they will be held pending deportation to "the country of their origin," which is interpreted to mean France, unless they are able to prove they have resources sufficient to leave Cuba at their own expense.

According to the story of the five refugees, they completed their sentences at the Cayenne [French Guiana] penal colony and set forth in a small boat at the end of December. They touched Trinidad, then visted Haiti and Porto Rico, where they left nine others who were aboard.

PRISONER TRADE MAY FREE BISHOP TAKEN AT TERUEL

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

VALENCIA, Spain, Jan. 23.—The captured bishop of Teruel, the Rev. Dr. Anselmo Polanco Fonseco, who is now a prisoner in San Miguel penitentiary in Valencia and the only Catholic bishop in government territory, will probably be exchanged for one or more prisoners in Generalissimo Francisco Franco's hands—whose return the government desires.

The chief intelligence officer on the Teruel front described the bishop's surrender.

"I asked the bishop if he could think of no way to end this war?" the officer said. "He replied, 'We are incompatible with you and the only way this war can end is by a victory for Gen. Franco.'"

He is being held as an important witness for the inquest. The one armed watchman, who has been working at the college for more than a year, was questioned by police officers who claimed they were not satisfied with his answers. They said they had been informed Quesnel had been on the scene of a hospital fire in Montreal some years ago.

MONGOLS PERIL JAPAN'S HOLD ON FRONTIER TOWNS

Fight to Reopen China's Corridor to Russia.

PEKING, Jan. 23.—(AP)—New reports from western Suiyuan province today strengthened recent information that troops of the soviet-inspired republic of Outer Mongolia were menacing the Japanese conquest of that corridor between China and Russia.

A traveler just returned from Paotow, strategic railhead in western Suiyuan of the line to Peking, said he heard there "constant reports of the activities of Outer Mongolians within a few miles of Paotow."

He declared he had seen Japanese planes chasing a plane which he took to be Russian to the south of Paotow and knew that hostile forces of some kind were operating within two miles of the city walls and had captured two nearby towns.

Corridor for Russian Supplies.

The railroad from Peking to Paotow is the key to Japanese control of more than half the North China territory through which Nippon's armies have marched. Domination of the 600 mile long line means domination of the corridor through which Russian supplies could come to China.

[Chinese have reported that the independent Outer Mongolian republic, which was established fifteen years ago under Russian influence, was merged with the Chinese government after the war started.]

The six months of war have brought the nominal conquest of some 400,000 square miles of North China, inhabited by 75,000,000 people, and 65,000 square miles of central China, inhabited by 40,000,000 people.

Only 170 miles and 400,000 Chinese troops along the borders of southern Shantung province separate the two Japanese areas. Two Japanese columns now are converging to close this gap, a drive expected to bring a decisive battle along the Lunghai railway, China's east to west lifeline.

Troops Distributed Thinly.

In North China, however, the Japanese control is but lightly supported. Travelers say the Japanese troops are distributed very thinly along the railways which the Chinese troops cross at will.

Renewed reports were heard that the Outer Mongolian troops had captured Pailingmiao [capital of Inner Mongolia] in eastern Suiyuan. Although this was not confirmed, the opinion at Paotow was that the capture would not be difficult, as the town was guarded only by Inner Mongolian troops under Japanese commanders.

Large concentrations of Outer Mongolian troops, including many Russians, and with 30 armored cars, were reported to have reached Wulanhua, a hundred miles southeast of Pailingmiao.

Paotow is garrisoned by only 500 Japanese troops, who are concentrated at the airport. The city gates frequently are closed and martial law prevails.

Gen. Ma at the Front.

Wuyuan, the next important town to the west, is held by Gen. Ma Chanshan, hero of the Chinese resistance in Manchuria in 1932. His troops were described as well armed, although short of food.

These details of activity in the little known region of North China came after Domei [Japanese news agency] reports that the Outer Mongolians were strengthening their border defenses. Pillbox fortifications were reported to have been erected along the Suiyuan frontier. The populace was said to have been moved to the north to clear a wide no-man's land for hostilities.

Bomb Railway Junction.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 24.—[Monday.]—(AP)—Japanese reported today their war planes had bombed Suchow, junction town on the central China front, and the Lunghai railroad to the east.

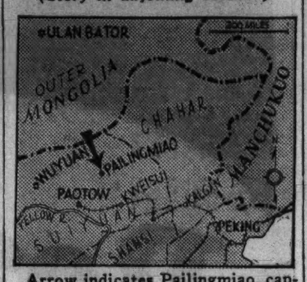
Reports conflicted on developments on the Tientsin-Pukow [Nanking] railroad, along which two Japanese columns were converging on Suchow from north and south.

Vladivostok Strengthened.

TOKIO, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The newspaper Nichi Nichi in a dispatch from Seoul, Corea, today said it was informed reliably that soviet armaments had been strengthened greatly in the far east, particularly around Vladivostok. The paper said the soviet pacific squadron's submarine strength had been raised to ninety.

Mongols Move on Japs

(Story in adjoining column.)



Arrow indicates Pailingmiao, capital of Inner Mongolia, reported to have been captured by Outer Mongolian troops friendly to soviet Russia and the Chinese national government. Chinese troops under Gen. Ma Chan-shan are said to hold Wuyuan, menacing the Japanese at Paotow.

PORTO RICO ASKS ROOSEVELT TO END DOCK STRIKE

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Representatives of Porto Rican trade and financial organizations today cabled President Roosevelt for help in ending a maritime strike which has tied up the island's shipping for two days.

At a meeting of business men it was declared that all local means of settling the wate front dispute had proved inadequate because of the leadership of the Committee for Industrial Organization.

Dock workers struck Jan. 3 for a basic hourly wage of 75 cents, an increase of 43 cents. Since then not one ton of cargo has been loaded or discharged in any island port. The business men charged the C. I. O. was responsible for the longshoremen's rejection of the shipping companies' offer of a 25 per cent wage increase.

U. S. Preparing to Demand Million for Panay Sinking

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—State department officials are compiling indemnity charges to be forwarded to Japan as a result of the sinking of the Unied States gunboat Panay on the Yangtse river in December. The indemnity to be asked is expected to total between $1,000,000 and $1,500,000, it was learned. The total when compiled will include the value of the gunboat, all her furnishings and equipment, personal effects of officers and men and of the civilians and embassy attachés aboard, and awards to Americans who were wounded and to relatives of those killed in the bombing.

Finns to Give Monument to U. S.; Choose Sculptor

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Jan. 23.—The government has commissioned the sculptor Waino Aaltonen to design a granite monument as a gift to the American people, destined to be erected in Delaware in the section of the state colonized by Finnish emigrants.

JAPS PUSH BILL TO NATIONALIZE ELECTRIC POWER

Demand Sacrifices to Gain Success in War.

BY KIMPEI SHEBA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Jan. 23.—Taking the fullest advantage of the wartime emergency situation, the government is doing its utmost to push through bills giving it added power and widening the scope of its activities, measures such as that to nationalize electric power.

Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoe has declared that everything must be sacrificed for the state at present to attain success in the war.

"Must Sacrifice Profit."

"Desire for profit by individuals will have to be sacrificed to some extent," the premier said. "For this purpose reformist policies will have to be carried out even if considerable friction develops."

The premier declared that electric power forms the basis of industry and is a most essential thing also from the standpoint of national defense and the people's livelihood. Consequently, he added, the government earnestly wishes the diet's approval of the bill giving the government full control over electric power.

Opposed by Two Parties.

A stiff fight is expected, as a large number of the members of parliament strongly oppose the move. Dissention is reported in the Minseito [majority] party, where it is reported opposition to the bill is dominant.

The Seiyukai, second strongest party, favors the introduction of a substitute bill permitting the government to supervise electric power with the coöperation of private interests.

FIRE DESTROYS REDS' EMBASSY AT HANKOW, CHINA

SHANGHAI, Jan. 24 [Monday].—(AP)—Reuters [British news agency] dispatches from Hankow, temporary Chinese capital, today reported the soviet embassy had been destroyed by fire. Unconfirmed reports said an explosion occurred before flames gutted the building.

[The soviet embassy in Hankow was a temporary office, occupied since the Chinese government moved to that city late in November. The soviet embassy in Nanking was burned when the Japanese occupied that former capital on Dec. 13.]

Tibet Conducts Mystic Rites to Select New Absolute Ruler

SHANGHAI, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Chanting lamas in snow covered lamaseries in the mountain fastenesses of Tibet are conducting mystical rituals to determine the absolute ruler of the mysterious "forbidden land."

Tibet, where two chiefs' deaths snarled selection of new ruler.

On the outcome may depend the opening of the country to western civilization and a new international contest for control of the reputedly wealthy "roof of the world."

Letters from a foreign missionary at Tachienlu, on the Tibetan border, some 1,500 miles west of Shanghai, disclosed that the ancient rites once again were being held and the strange religious and political struggle that hangs on the result.

Tibetan history records no previous case when the death of both the dalai lama and panchen lama left the country of 3,000,000 people without either of their all-powerful temporal and religious rulers.

Must Choose Infant to Carry On.

The dalai lama died in December, 1933; the panchen lama in November, 1937. But the panchen lama or spiritual ruler had been exiled since 1924 and had been unable to recognize the reincarnation of the dalai lama, the political ruler.

The power of the two grand lamas—the panchen and the dalai—rises from the Buddhist doctrin of reincarnation. When either dies the other must select a recently born infant in whom the dead lama has been reborn.

Since the death of the dalai lama, political control of Tibet has been held by a group of his supporters called gudras. Lamas sympathetic to them are testing the truth of claims that the dalai lama was reincarnated in a boy discovered at Jyekundo by followers of the panchen lama.

It was at Jyekundo, western China, that the panchen lama died while trying to make his way back to Tibet from his long exile.

Disputed Before Their Deaths.

The tests are unusually severe because of the dispute between the dalai and panchen lamas before their deaths—a dispute which seemingly has descended to their supporters.

The panchen lama, who was worshipped as a reincarnation of Buddha himself, had attempted to bring educational and political reforms to the strange country, hemmed in from the world by lofty mountains.

Although each lama is supreme spiritually among his followers, the religious influence of the panchen lama was more widespread as he was considered a reincarnation of Buddha himself.

The dalai lama, however, was unquestioned temporal ruler and orthodox Tibetans resented the panchen lama's efforts to bring administrative reforms into the country's ancient culture.

The future religious and temporal peace of Tibet depends largely on whether the ritual tests of the lamas sympathetic to the gudras confirm the reincarnation of the dalai lama or contend that the panchen lama's followers erred.

Young Tibet Party Rises.

The gudra supporters of the old dalai lama, strangely enough, recently have been reported sympathetic to the Young Tibet party which advocates some measure of modernization of the hitherto unchanging land at the top of the world.

This would reopen the decades old international struggle for control of Tibetan affairs, a struggle that in the past has favored first China, then Great Britain, then Russia.

DISCLOSE PARIS KILLER TRIED TO NET EX-U. S. MAN

VERSAILLES, France, Jan. 23.—(AP)—A study of the correspondence of Eugene Weidmann, confessed killer of six persons, including an American dancer, Jean de Koven, disclosed today that he had spread his murder for profit net for another intended victim, a former Washington, D. C., hotelkeeper.

Investigating Magistrate Georges Berry announced he had found a letter Weidmann wrote to Arthur Odier, a Swiss who now lives at Geneva, offering him the management of a Riviera hotel which Weidmann said he had inherited.

Berry said Odier replied, offering to come to Paris for a conference, but Weidmann apparently was not ready to "receive" Odier and wrote asking the Geneva man to delay his visit several weeks. No further correspondence was found. Berry asked Geneva authorities to interview Odier.

$150 SPENT IN PLOT TO BOMB JAPANESE SHIP, SAYS DETECTIVE

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 23.—(AP)—Rolphe M. Forsyth, who drowned in an attempt to blow up the Japanese vessel Hiye Maru, spent between $150 and $200 in the bomb plot, Detective Lieutenant F. A. Hines said today. Dynamite recovered by Seattle and Tacoma police and United States customs inspectors at Seattle and Tacoma was valued at $80, Hines said.

Where Forsyth, long out of work, obtained the money engaged the efforts of Seattle police today. His body was found floating near the Hiye Maru, Thursday morning. Nearby attached to a railroad tie, was a suitcase bomb containing 369 sticks of dynamite.

Police yesterday recovered 1,191 sticks of dynamite from the Puyallup river at Tacoma, where Forsyth once stayed.

ESCAPE WITH FUR COATS.

Burglars early yesterday broke into the Jacob Libken fur shop at 2302 Devon avenue and stole five fur coats valued at $865.

Moving Forward

Marshall Field & Company presents here each day observations and opinions intended to be of interest and value to those it seeks to serve.

LET US LIVE UP TO OURSELVES

By CALEB

WHEN people or institutions ponder the tributes they are paid, they are likely to do so in one of two spirits—a spirit of vanity or a spirit of humility.

A man recently told us of seeing the following sign in the office of a large manufacturing plant in a neighboring state: "Goodwill is the one and only asset that competitors cannot undersell or destroy. —Marshall Field."

A dear old soul who is the head of a home in a suburb recently said in a letter to us, "The whole of Chicago is justly proud of the great fine store you represent (somehow store is not imposing enough—let's say institution)."

No one in this business can hear such tales or read such letters with a feeling of anything but humility. The sensitive store executive is bound to contemplate seriously the considerable regard of the public which forthright dealing has created for us.

Likewise is our humility deepened when we hear of a sermon preached in an Ann Arbor church. Its title was "The Tragedy of the Complete." The minister said in part:

"'Forever Incomplete' . . . I found this subject one day as I was walking through Marshall Field's store in Chicago. Extensive alterations are going on; new escalators are being installed; and on the walled-in shafts there is a large card reading 'FOREVER INCOMPLETE—AGAIN WE PROGRESS — BUILD — IMPROVE—ADVANCE.' That struck me as a very significant slogan for one of the most famous stores in the world where things seem so complete and merchandising has been brought to a fine art. A store whose standards and methods set the pace and pattern for stores all over the country; they have struck this note. Instead of feeling the last word in department stores has been said, they have adopted this stirring slogan, 'FOREVER INCOMPLETE.'"

The compliments we receive make us extremely conscious of the fact that our service is still short of ideal. Until every Field employe serves as well as the best, we can accept compliments only as a challenge, and remain humble in the presence of appreciation.

BLASTS WRECK DU PONT PLANT; KILL WORKMAN

Explosions Follow Hunt for Gas Leak.

Deep Water, N. J., Jan. 23.—(AP)—One man was injured fatally, another was missing, and a third was burned severely today in a series of predawn blasts which were heard for twenty miles and which wrecked a four story plant of the E. I. du Pont de Nemours company dye works.

Arrow shows location of Deep Water.

Charles Forshay of Central Park, a mechanic, died of burns after he was taken to a hospital at Wilmington, Del., across the Delaware river from this south Jersey community.

Raymond Hale of Carney's Point, a night shift foreman, was taken to the hospital seriously burned. Earl Hale of Central Park was missing.

Blasts Occur at Lunch Hour.

Four men who had left the building to eat their lunches escaped injury.

Workmen said the explosions, of which there were six or eight within ten minutes, occurred while Forshay and the two Hales were tracing a leak of acetylene gas, used in the manufacture of synthetic rubber.

One of the workmen said Forshay commented as he started to hunt the leak: "The whole works would go up if there was a spark."

Clothing Burned from Bodies.

A few minutes later a flash of blue lighted the scene, and the first explosion shook the building. The other blasts followed quickly, and workmen saw Forshay and Raymond Hale, their clothing burned off, stagger from the building. Earl Hale could not be found. The two Hales were not related.

Du Pont officials estimated the property damage at $400,000.

Giant Lily Blooms

A South African lily, with a wine and lavender blossom 15 inches wide and 27 inches high, is in bloom at the home of Mrs. N. G. Sewell, 8323 Paxton avenue. The bulb for the plant, which in itself weighs six and a half pounds, was brought to Mrs. Sewell from South Africa four years ago by a British army captain. It was placed in a jardiniere, covered with peat moss, and thereafter let alone. The result now may be seen in a plant 65 inches tall. The stem is a spotted red and green, while the blossom, which resembles a jack-in-the-pulpit in shape, is lavender and dark red. Although popularly known as snake's crown or devil's tongue, its botanical name is amorphophallus rivieri.

EX-GOV. WHITE SEEKS BULKLEY'S SEAT IN SENATE

Columbus, O., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—Former Gov. George White, chairman of the Democratic national committee in 1920, today announced he will enter the Democratic primary for the nomination for United States senator to succeed Senator Robert J. Bulkley, an administration "regular."

White said he favored the objectives of the New Deal and recognized President Roosevelt as the leader of the Democratic party.

At a convention of Young Democrats here last night Senator Elbert Thomas of Utah praised Senator Bulkley's record, indicating the national administration will enter the state contest in earnest.

Barkley Seeks Reëlection.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 23.—(AP)—Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley today announced his candidacy for reëlection to the United States senate. Although there has been no announcement it is believed Gov. A. B. Chandler will oppose Barkley in the Democratic primary in August.

Baby Drowns When Sled Slides Into Icy Stream

Redding, Conn., Jan. 23.—(AP)—A baby 19 months old drowned today when a sled on which he had been left by his mother slid down the bank into an icy stream. The child was Lawrence Bronson, only son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bronson.

MILK DRIVERS DROP PLANS TO VOTE ON STRIKE

Milk wagon drivers, meeting in the Ashland Boulevard auditorium, last night voted to call off strike discussions as the result of action by dairy companies rescinding action that would have reduced the price of milk in stores from 13 to 12 cents a quart. The reduction was to have gone into effect today. The drivers complained, saying that if consumers could buy milk cheaper at stores than through delivery routes many drivers would be thrown out of work. They set a meeting for last night to talk over a possible strike.

ARE YOU ONE OF "the lucky 40%?"

● Unfortunately, only 40% of the people who live in Chicago and the north and west suburbs are within easy walking distance of the Rapid Transit Lines. Are you one of the lucky 40%?

Are you one of the lucky ones who get about swiftly, surely and comfortably on fast trains . . . dependable regardless of weather? Or are you one of the unlucky 60% . . . forced to creep along behind slow-moving, hazardous street traffic . . . fighting your way through stop lights and jammed intersections . . . taking chances with pedestrians and slippery streets?

IF YOU'RE AMONG THE LUCKY

Your transportation is over the Elevated Rapid Transit private right-of-way . . . unused by any other form of traffic. Your trip begins and ends under sheltered platforms. You ride up in the fresh, healthful air . . . above congested streets . . . unbothered by the weather. You enjoy all-night as well as all-day service.

You save countless hours of travel time. You rank with the 80% living in New York who have had Rapid Transit brought to them . . . and with the 50% of all the people who use public transportation in and out of the Chicago Loop in the rush hour periods . . . the "L" carries that percentage.

YOU CAN BE PARTIALLY LUCKY!

Until Rapid Transit service is brought directly to you, you can still enjoy its benefits for the major portion of your trip by transferring from buses and street car lines to the "L" . . . under the existing transfer arrangement.

More than 39,000,000 riders used the transfer plan last year . . . an increase of 3,500,000 compared with 1936.

The average transfer passenger traveled but 1.8 miles on the surface carriers and 8.4 miles on the Rapid Transit Lines. Think what this meant in hours saved . . . and in added comfort . . . to 39,000,000 people!

If you aren't one of THE LUCKY 40%, any "L" station agent will be glad to show you how to use the transfer plan. Why not benefit from it today? Carry one of the newly issued Rapid Transit maps. It shows all the transfer points. . . . Yours for the asking.

GET THERE! Ride the "L" THE FAST, COMFORTABLE WAY

DOWNSTATERS JUMP THE GUN IN SUPPORT OF IGOE

Drive Is Opened Without His Knowledge.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Nominating petitions in behalf of Michael L. Igoe as a candidate for the United States senate will be put into circulation today in scores of downstate counties.

By coincidence, Igoe's decision to run, which he reached in Washington last week, become known just as a plan to draft him for the race was being given tangible form. Without his knowledge petition forms were printed last week, were mailed on Saturday—before his decision was disclosed—and this morning will be delivered to friends of his throughout the downstate area.

Backed by Former Associates.

Leadership in this activity was assumed several weeks ago by a committee of Igoe enthusiasts built around a nucleus composed of his former associates in the legislature, where he served for sixteen years before he was elected congressman at large in 1934.

Former Majority Leader Thomas P. Sinnett of Rock Island is chairman of this committee.

"We're overjoyed to hear that Igoe's decided to run," he said. "We were preparing to draft him, but the fact that we won't have to force him any more than we have already doesn't mean that we'll cease our activity.

Plan Springfield Office.

"We'll go right ahead with the petition and now we'll have the help of a lot of people who had been hesitant because they thought Igoe wouldn't run against Senator Dieterich. We intend to open an office in Springfield and I'm going there on Tuesday to take charge of the work."

Included in the committee are many of the Igoe lieutenants who supported him as an independent candidate for governor in 1932 and in 1934 made him high man in the state election which sent him to congress.

Igoe was reached yesterday in New York, where he had stopped for a day on his way back from Washington and, over the telephone, declined to say when he will make a formal announcement of his candidacy. He will be back in the district attorney's office this morning.

Occupied With Ross Case.

"I am prepared, he said, "to devote all my time if necessary to the Ross kidnaping case. Until that case is taken care of I shan't have any time for politics."

Gov. Horner was told over the telephone of the developments in the senatorship situation but, although listening to the recital closely, refused to talk about them. Those close to the governor think he still believes the nomination this year should go to a downstater.

One of those developments was a disclosure of an extremely quietly nourished movement to make John P. Devine of Dixon, former speaker of the Illinois house, a compromise candidate upon whom both the downstate and Cook county could unite. Those active in it were fearful, it is said, of approaching either side first for fear of arousing a suspicion that the candidacy originated with that side. That was the situation when Igoe's decision to run became known.

Devine Probably Will Run.

Although it is conceded that, regardless of the action of the leaders, the Igoe candidacy will have many friends in the Horner camp and in the Nash-Kelly organization. Devine, when asked about his own candidacy, spoke firmly about his own intentions.

"You may say that I'll probably run," he said.

Another effect of the news about Igoe was to revive the temporarily subdued activity of friends of State's Attorney Courtney who for a long time sought to persuade him to get into the senate race. Courtney is said to have quieted that activity with a statement that he agreed with the contention that the nomination should go to a downstater. With Igoe definitly in the contest now, the Courtney people say the state's attorney is seriously considering whether he will run.

BILLION DOLLAR NAVAL BUILDING PROGRAM READY

Congress to Hear from Roosevelt This Week.

mission last Nov. 1 was 199, compared with Great Britain's 195 and Japan's 213. The American fleet consisted of twelve battleships [exclusive of the New York, Arkansas, and Texas, over-age ships assigned to reserve training duty], four aircraft carriers, seventeen heavy cruisers, twelve light cruisers, eight destroyers over 1,500 tons, ninety-four destroyers not over 1,500 tons, and fifty-two submarines.

Under construction are two battleships, two aircraft carriers, one heavy cruiser, seven light cruisers, sixteen submarines, four 1,850 ton destroyers, thirty-four 1,500 ton destroyers, one seaplane tender, and one destroyer tender.

In addition the appropriations bill calls for two battleships, two cruisers, eight destroyers, six submarines, one mine sweeper, one submarine tender, one fleet tug, and one oiler.

Replace Old Ships.

As fast as they are completed they will replace aged ships. The two battleships now on the ways, the North Carolina, in the New York navy yard, and the Washington, in the Philadelphia navy yard, and the two battleships contemplated will replace the New York, Arkansas, Texas, and one other over-age capital ship, bringing that category up to fifteen, allowed by the Washington and London treaties.

It is possible that the new battleships may be much larger than any in commission, and they may carry bigger guns. A limit of 35,000 tons was imposed in the London treaty of 1936, to which Great Britain and this country are signatories.

Reports have reached the British admiralty and the United States navy that Japan is building two ships of 43,000 to 46,000 tons and mounting eighteen inch guns. In view of these reports this country and Great Britain have undertaken an exchange of views with a view to dropping the tonnage limit.

A larger fleet necessarily would call for a bigger enlisted personnel, but for the current year the navy is asking only for an increase in enlisted personnel from 105,000 to 110,570, and in the marine corps from 17,000 to 17,500, and with 241 additional navy officers and twenty additional marine officers.

Modest increases in personnel also are planned by the army. Officer strength will be 12,485, an increase of 158, the ultimate objective being 14,659 regular officers. No increase in enlisted personnel was requested this year, the total now being 162,000; but funds are sought to add 5,000 men to the National Guard total of 200,000, with an ultimate objective of 210,000.

Congress also has heeded recommendations by the army and navy staffs for checking the activities of spies. Regulations governing the photographing of fortifications, harbors, and rivers have been enforced by the military services, but these recently were strengthened by heavy penalties for photographing fortifications or naval or military equipment without consent of the post and ship commandants.

He is Philip R. Bradley, president of the Alaska Juneau Mining company, and he has put $10,000 up to back his beliefs that Aurora Borealis is the jumpinest frog in the world.

News Telling of Mother, 14, Leads to Father's Arrest

Alton, Ill., Jan. 23.—(AP)—A newspaper item telling of the birth of a child to a 14 year old mother here last week led to the arrest of its father. Chief of Police Paul Smith said William Ernest Edwards, 27, was placed in jail today after police received a letter from a woman in Los Angeles, who claims she is the wife of Edwards and the mother of two of his children. The 14 year old mother, whose name was given as Margery Edwards, and the child are at St. Joseph's hospital here.

10,000 MEMBERS OF FOOD PACKING INDUSTRIES MEET

Mrs. Ella Gasking.

Approximately 10,000 members of the canning and foods industries are in Chicago this week for a series of conventions dealing with subjects that range from canning machinery to preserved cherries. Among the visitors is Mrs. Ellen H. Gasking of Sheffield, England, chairman of Batchelor's Peas, Ltd. She assumed control of her father's business at the age of 22.

The largest group will be the triple convention of the National Canners' association, the Canning Machinery and Supplies association, and the National Food Brokers' association. The first two are meeting at the Stevens hotel, the latter at the Palmer house. A fourth, which will hold joint meetings with the canners, is the National American Wholesale Grocers' association, meeting at the Congress hotel.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

BY FRANK RIDGWAY

Oak Tree's Story

January 23, 1938.

THE story of rainfall in northern Illinois during the last century was found in the growth rings of a dead red oak tree cut down in the front yard of one of the homes at the Wheaton farm the other day. Dr. George D. Fuller, professor emeritus of ecology of the botany department, University of Chicago, has been comparing the story in the oak and the story told in the official weather man's records and has found that the two are practically the same.

The annual growth rings were counted, indicating that the tree was 100 years old when it died last year. This oak apparently grew from an acorn that sprouted in 1837, the year the charter for the city of Chicago was granted.

The tree was keeping an accurate record of the rainfall thirty miles west of here for thirty-four years before the Chicago weather bureau was established in 1871.

By charting the rainfall for the last sixty-six years and the annual rate of growth, indicated by the rings in the stump of the red oak, Dr. Fuller found a correlation between the rainfall and the growth. In years when there was a shortage of rain the rings were narrow; they usually were much wider when there was an abundance of moisture.

Divides Life in 4 Periods.

Dr. Fuller divided the life story of the tree into four chapters—childhood, youth, maturity, and decline.

Childhood days of the tree roughly covered the first two decades. During that period growth was rather slow. The increase in diameter of the tree began at one-tenth of an inch each year, gradually increasing to one-fourth of an inch per year.

The youth period lasted thirty years, or the third, fourth, and fifth decades. During youth the tree made its most rapid growth, adding about one inch in diameter every three years.

The maturity period began when the tree was about a half century old and lasted for about forty years. During these four decades there was an active, steady growth. The tree increased in diameter about an inch every five years, but, as the circumference of the tree became greater the actual amount of wood produced each year probably was equal to that of the youth period, although the growth rings in the maturity period were narrower.

A decided decline in growth began with the drouth of 1934. The tree never recovered. The decline continued until the tree died last year. Other drouths are clearly indicated by the growth rings.

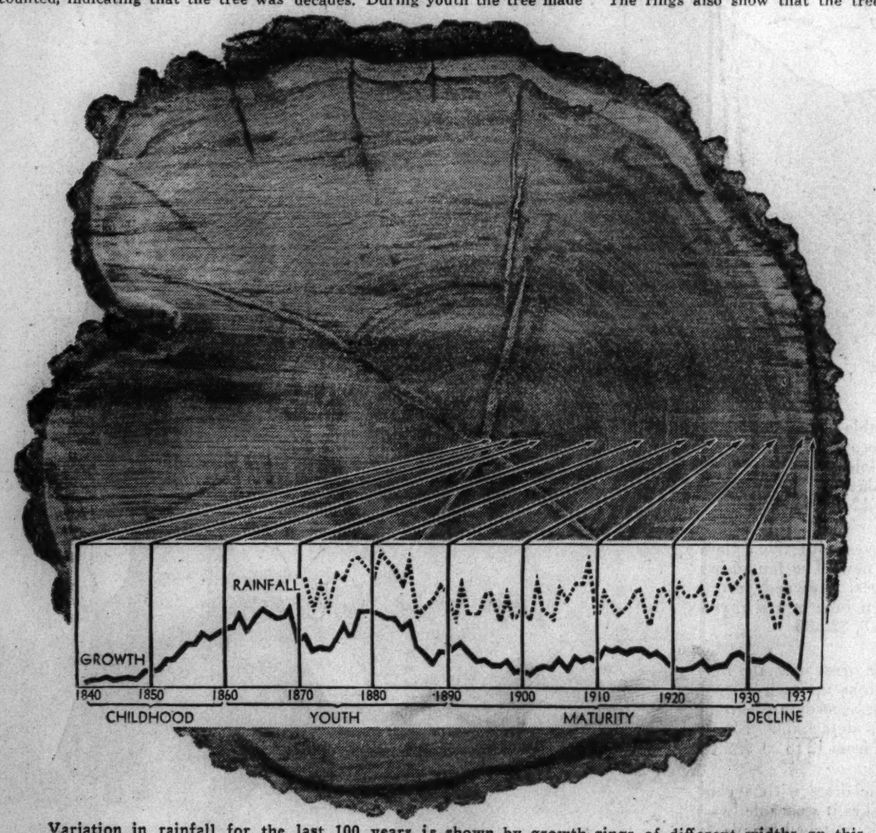
96 Rings Counted.

When the tree was cut down it was approximately 28½ inches in diameter and 89½ inches in circumference. The tree was sawed down, leaving a stump several inches above the ground so that the rings representing about four years growth were below the top of the stump. Ninety-six rings were easily distinguished.

The rings also show that the tree was injured fifty-two years ago. The injury left a depression in the side of the trunk and subsequent rings were distorted, indicating the location of the scar tissue at the top of the stump.

Although the red oak was 100 years old, it died a young tree in comparison to some of the farm's oaks. It was considered young for a red oak. Some red oaks have been known to live 400 years.

A 12 foot log was cut from the tree and has been snaked to the sawmill on the farm, where it will be sawed into rails.



Variation in rainfall for the last 100 years is shown by growth rings of different widths on this dead red oak cut on The Tribune's Wheaton farm recently. The two lines on the chart show how the growth, as evident in the rings, varied with the rainfall. Arrows indicate growth made in ten year periods during the life of the tree.

SEEK EXPULSION OF C. I. O. FROM A. F. OF L. UNIONS

Executive Board Meets in Miami Today.

Miami, Fla., Jan. 23.—(AP)—The American Federation of Labor's executive council opens a meeting here tomorrow with battle plans against the Committee for Industrial Organization its prime consideration.

William Green, president, and other officials are delaying their arrival until just before the sessions start tomorrow, but unofficial sentiment expressed by labor leaders on hand tonight appeared to favor outright expulsion of the big unions in the mining and men's clothing fields which furnish the C. I. O. most of its strength.

The United Mine Workers and the Amalgamated Clothing Workers were suspended a year and a half ago, but their final ejection from the federation would permit the A. F. of L. to attempt to organize those fields with its unions.

To Study Peace Carefully.

At the same time the council doubtless will give careful consideration to appeals for a truce between the rival labor organizations which have been issued by various influential unionists since peace negotiations with the C. I. O. collapsed in Washington last month.

The delegates were interested in Green's statement issued in New York last night terming recent activities of David Dubinsky commendable efforts to promote peace.

Assailed by Dubinsky.

Dubinsky, president of the C. I. O.'s International Ladies Garment Workers union, in an address Jan. 12 blamed the collapse of the Washington negotiations on other C. I. O. leaders, moving John L. Lewis, C. I. O. chairman, to comment that Dubinsky seems to be giving an imitation of Eliza crossing the ice and looking back like Lot's wife.

Green's commendation of Dubinsky last night, his first comment since Dubinsky's statement, was made incidentally in a denunciation of the formation in New York of an industrial council by C. I. O. unions. Green termed the council a communist intrigue, the objective of which, he said, was promoting communism and deepening the cleavage in organized labor.

One Burned, 25 Flee as Fire Attacks 3 Story Building

Robert Thompson, 20 years old, was burned yesterday in a fire which started in his third floor flat at 755 West North avenue. Twenty-five other tenants fled from the building. Fire Chief Richard Burns estimated the damage at $2,500.

Admit Bank Holdups

Thomas Sinks. John Botinski.

Maxwell street police said yesterday the arrest of two confessed bandits is expected to solve a number of recent bank robberies in Illinois and Indiana. The bandits are John Botinski, 33 years old, East Chicago, Ind., and Thomas Sinks, 19 years old, Roseland, Ind.

Captured Saturday night at 1155 Washington boulevard, they confessed helping rob the Farmers' State bank of Goodwine, Ill., of $725 last Nov. 26 and the Demotte State bank of Demotte, Ind., of $2,300 on Dec. 28.

TWICE IN DEATH HOUSE, AGAIN IN SHADOW OF CHAIR

New York, Jan. 23.—[Special.]—Released twice from the death house in Sing Sing while awaiting execution, Michael Alex, 27 years old, a former east side stevedore, found himself in the shadow of the electric chair again today.

Arraigned before Magistrate Richard F. McKiniry in Felony court on suspicion of homicide in connection with the murder of a young insurance collector last December, Alex was ordered held without bail for a hearing Feb. 10. He also faces a fifth jury trial for participating in the murder, seven years ago, of Frank Pendlebury, a grocer, for the murder of whom he has twice faced the chair.

STRIFE SHACKLES SHIP INDUSTRY, CONGRESS TOLD

Operators Fear to Expand, Says Commission.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23.—(AP)—The maritime commission reiterated today that chaotic labor conditions prevailed in the shipping industry.

In a report to congress on its activities during the year ended Oct. 25, the commission said:

"Although the commission has recommended remedial legislation, no lasting cure will be effected until the jurisdictional strife now prevalent in maritime labor is terminated and a more coöperative working arrangement is reached by the unions and the ship operators."

Peril to Industry Told.

A corollary to the problem of replacing old vessels in the American merchant marine is the problem of providing them with satisfactory seagoing personnel, the commission said.

"Despite the urgent need for new construction, private operators hesitate in the face of the present labor situation," it said. "Chaotic labor conditions, signalized by demands of crews, sitdown and quickie strikes, and slipshod performance of duties are characteristic of the industry."

The commission called its major task the replacement of the rapidly ageing American merchant fleet, adding: "The foundation for a long range construction program has been laid."

Mediation Board Urged.

To improve the maritime labor situation, the commission has recommended creation of a mediation board similar to that provided by the railway labor act, provision for training young men for a career at sea, and continuous employment of seamen instead of the archaic system of signing workers for each voyage.

The Bland-Copeland bills to carry out the first two recommendations are pending in congress. Many spokesmen for maritime labor organizations have voiced opposition to both measures.

BEG YOUR PARDON

An item in THE TRIBUNE society section yesterday incorrectly announced the marriage of Miss Florence Gaertner to Herbert H. Joseph Jr. They plan to be married Feb. 1.

A. F. L. AID URGES STUDY OF BRITISH JOB REGULATION

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23.—(AP)—John P. Frey, president of the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor, today suggested that labor and government take a look at British wage and hour regulation system, in view of the stalemate on wage and hour legislation in congress.

Frey, who recently returned from England, said the British government had succeeded in regulating wages and hours in sweated industries through the trade board system.

"The British law provides," he said, "that when employers and workmen in a sweated industry ask the minister of labor to set up a trade board, the minister, after published notice, appoints three neutral members and an equal number from a panel of employers and workmen in the industry.

"After careful consideration, the board prepares a report establishing the minimum wage, conditions of employment and sanitation, and the maximum hours. When the minister signs the board's report it becomes as much a law of that industry as though it had been enacted by parliament."

Entertaining in Philadelphia follows a pattern quite different from that of other great cities.

In contrast to apartment and hotel dwellers of other metropolitan centers, the people of Philadelphia live and entertain in individual, single-family homes.

Philadelphians thus take pride in preserving the City's traditions for open house hospitality . . . for tables laden for family and guests!

More housewives in Philadelphia are buying foods, beverages and grocery products for individual, single-family homes than in any other city in America.

For Philadelphia is by far America's greatest city of individual homes, with more single-family dwellings† than all of New York City and Buffalo combined, more than Chicago and St. Louis added together, more than the total of Detroit and Cleveland. More than in any one of twenty-two states!

†U. S. Census, 1930

Naturally, with her heritage from home-loving ancestors, the Philadelphia housewife is responsive to advertising of things for the home.

And it can be understood why Philadelphia's home newspaper, The Evening Bulletin, year after year, has led all of the Nation's daily newspapers in volume of national advertising of food and grocery products!

In mansion or modest home, almost without exception, Philadelphia women are daily readers of The Evening Bulletin. Home information in this, their favorite newspaper, is eagerly sought, attentively read.

The Bulletin's leadership in daily national advertising of food and grocery products, reflects its thorough coverage of this great Home Market. The Bulletin reaches 78.9% of all Philadelphia families; 89% of Philadelphia families with incomes of $3,000 or more; 94% with incomes of $10,000 and up.*

For many years, The Bulletin has averaged more than a half-million daily circulation. 517,086 for 1937. Without prize, premium or subscriber contest, the circulation of The Bulletin far exceeds that of any other Philadelphia daily newspaper, morning or evening. One of the largest daily newspaper circulations in America! All net paid!

With The Evening Bulletin, manufacturers of home products, furnishings, appliances . . . reach this greatest of all groups of individual home dwellers, at one of the lowest advertising costs per reader in America.

Your advertising agency will gladly submit plans on increasing your sales, through advertising in The Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

TRIP BY TRAILER OVER; HERE ARE PROS AND CONS

Tribune's Roving Rollers Cover 5,214 Miles.

BY HAL FOUST.

THE TRIBUNE'S trailerites are home after five weeks' experience with this form of travel. We covered 5,214 miles, stopped in eighteen camps, and interviewed hundreds of trailer users. We feel prepared to report conclusions, to be discounted, if you wish, as merely one man's opinion.

The trailer is here to stay. The present total, estimated at 200,000, will increase substantially but it will always remain a small fraction of the country's automobile population. There are 29,500,000 passenger cars in America.

The trailer is an economical year around residence for those who have retired with modest incomes and wish to spend the winters in the south and the summers in the north. It is also a practical residence for many itinerants, such as construction and farm laborers, and some salesmen. Farmers can go to Florida for the winter and let their grown children care for the livestock.

No Vacation Future.

For annual vacations of two or three weeks, there is no great future for the trailer. As a novelty, it's sport. Some will like it after the novelty has worn off. The majority doesn't. It handicaps the automobile and the driver, and there's little rest for the housewife.

For infrequent use trailer ownership is expensive and rental is not cheap. A moderate price for a new trailer is $1,000, the annual license is $12, and for city dwellers there's a storage problem. Rentals range from $21 to $70 a week with a charge of $10.50 for installation of brakes.

On the road, gasoline consumption is not increased materially. We averaged 15.5 miles per gallon with our light automobile and medium weight trailer. There is no measuring the wear and tear from the overload on springs, brakes, clutch, and bearings.

Facilities at Camps.

At the eighteen camps, the fees per night ranged from 50 to 75 cents. Four had clean showers and lavatories for community use. There will be more desirable camps when health authorities close the insanitary places, permitting an operator with an investment in plumbing to charge a reasonable fee without the present price competition from operators without this investment.

Of course there are more than four good trailer camps in the nine states traversed on this trip. However, as in picking cabins, hotels, and restaurants on tours without a trailer, there is no reliable guide to better places. Some directories are influenced by the advertising or fees paid by the places listed. Furthermore, conditions change too rapidly for accurate reporting in any impartial annual publication.

Thanks to the trailer, we had good food during this out of town assignment. My wife performed with an electric grill, saving us from adventures in uncertain restaurants. However, once we were homeward bound, the pleasant life of Florida camps behind us, and an uncramped home ahead of us, we abandoned trailer cooking to devote more hours to driving.

Trailer Teeters on Axle.

Mechanically the conventional trailer is not sound engineering. The hook-up is an improvisation. The trailer teeters on its axle. Its connection with the tow car, behind the rear springs, gives it a leverage for prying at the automobile, alternately tugging and pushing.

Conceivably, the near future will see mechanical improvements and, more important, betterments in camp facilities.

If this recreational motoring industry, involving an annual expenditure of more than 4 billion dollars, is ever organized, automobile tourists will be offered standardized eating and sleeping accommodations at cross-country chains of cabin camps without towing their own kitchens and beds.

Visionary? Perhaps so. Indisputable, however, are the facts that Americans in numbers continuously increasing are traveling the highways for distances continuously increasing, and they are not satisfied with beds and food found en route.

However, if you're going to try a trailer jaunt, read the practical suggestions to be published in the automobile section of THE TRIBUNE next Sunday.

Army Planes Join Search for Missing Fishing Tug

Two army planes from Chicago joined in a search yesterday for the Walter K., a fishing tug, missing since last Dec. 10 in the vilnity of Beaver Island, twenty miles southeast of the straits of Mackinac. The Chicago planes and a third one from Sault Ste. Marie were equipped with skis. Aboard the Walter K. were Herman Kadeau, 80 years old; Walter Kadeau, 50, and Chester St. Onge, 26.

THE TVA DECISION.

Three judges sitting in the federal District court at Chattanooga have upheld the right of the Tennessee Valley Authority to sell power in competition with private power companies. The judges accepted the TVA's contention that power production is merely incidental to improvement of the river for navigation and flood control, a sphere of activity delegated to congress in the constitution.

It is common knowledge that in fact the TVA was undertaken as an attack upon the power companies operating in the southeastern states. There can be no doubt about that. The men who inspired TVA and put the scheme across made little effort at the time to conceal their real motives. They thought, and still think, of TVA as the first of a series of such attacks upon private power companies. Navigation, flood control, and the war powers of congress were merely more or less ingenious subterfuges to get around the constitution.

It seems likely that the court will incur more ridicule and opprobrium for its decision than it will deserve. Certainly it cannot be charged with breaking the ground in this matter. The Wilson dam at Muscle Shoals on the Tennessee and the steam plant which was built in connection with it were authorized under the fiction that they were required by a war emergency. The fact is that the politicians with an eye to the pork barrel and the real estate boys, with an eye to the suckers, saw a golden opportunity and seized it. Offices were opened in all the sizable cities in the north to sell town lots miles from the dam site. The scheme was in fact a real estate swindle, approved and supported by socialists, but it got by.

So, too, did Boulder dam. This venture was upheld as a river improvement, although it was no secret that Los Angeles and other communities in southern California maintained lobbies in Washington for years to wangle the necessary appropriation from congress. They had no real interest in improving navigation on the Colorado river, hundreds of miles away. What they were after was a domestic water supply for Los Angeles and the satellite towns, to be provided at somebody else's expense. Boulder dam as an aid to navigation is a colossal joke.

Indeed, the record goes much farther back than that, for congress began appropriating for fictitious river improvements long before Los Angeles became the paradise of the go-getters. These schemes have been put through congress by contractors' lobbies. Local support is obtained for the appropriations not so much because the communities expect to benefit from improved navigation as because they are eager to have a sizable government pay roll spent in the neighborhood.

In the light of these precedents it is plain that after all the TVA is merely political graft running wild. Perhaps we must have some such flagrant demonstration of political infamy to shock the public into an understanding of how badly it is being defrauded by its servants.

SECOND CLASS MAIL.

The second class mail privilege has become a racket whereby the postoffice department pretends it is subsidizing the press and in return insists upon imposing absurd burocratic regulations on newspapers and magazines.

For many years, off and on, the postoffice department has been asserting that it loses money on newspapers, magazines, and other periodicals carried as second class mail. Every time the complaint has been made THE TRIBUNE has stated that it, like other reputable publications, does not expect, does not want, and should not have service at less than cost. We expect to pay a fair price for what we get. We have called attention to the fact that the accuracy of the postoffice department's accounting methods is open to grave question and have suggested an impartial investigation to determine what the second class costs really are. We have said that upon the basis of such an inquiry the second class rates should be revised to wipe out any deficit that can fairly be charged to the service.

The suggestion, though a fair one, has not been adopted, and we are tired of offering it. We are even more tired of the innuendo which classifies us among the leeches who want the government to contribute to their support. And we resent the impertinence of the burocrats who find their largest satisfaction in trying to tell publishers from time to time what the second class regulations permit to be mailed and what must be eliminated.

The second class service is a bad business for all who are concerned with it. The best way out would be the repeal of the second class mail law. There could be no suspicion of subsidy then, and no excuse for the burocrats to exercise their little egos. The newspapers can adjust themselves to the change without much difficulty. Trucks, buses, express, and freight services suggest how newspapers may be dispatched promptly and economically without use of the postoffice facilities. If the postoffice department is losing money on the service it will welcome repeal of the law and won't miss the revenue derived from it.

INEXCUSABLE INTERFERENCE.

A stay of execution has been granted the convicted murderers, Mrs. Porter and Angelo Giancola, It was granted by Lieut. Gov. Stelle, in the absence of Gov. Horner. The grounds given are of the flimsiest character. The mother of Giancola asked for postponement in order to find further evidence in support of his plea for commutation. Giancola has had the benefit of a fair trial under all the safeguards which Illinois law throws about the trial of persons charged with crime. He and his friends have had plenty of time to bring forth all mitigating circumstances. No reason has appeared to justify the lieutenant governor in expecting that evidence justifying a stay will be presented.

A stay of execution on sentimental grounds is the beginning of the defeat of justice. The murder committed by Mrs. Porter and Giancola was cold bloodedly planned for money. Gov. Horner, although he is opposed in theory to the death penalty, has declared that after careful examination of the record he could find no reason under the law to overrule the judgment of the law upon these criminals. The lieutenant governor, although he admits that he has not the information possessed by Gov. Horner, takes advantage of the governor's absence to overrule his decision, on the ground that he has two sons of the same age as Giancola and that a reprieve will do no harm. It does do harm, for it is a breach of public duty and an expression of the sloppy sentimentality which has notoriously weakened respect for law and the defense of the community from crime.

The granting of the stay for Giancola has naturally induced the lieutenant governor to grant a stay for Mrs. Porter on the ground that it would not be fair to reprieve one participant in the murder without reprieving the other. Thus one error begets another which has not even a pretense of legality.

The lieutenant governor's action in this case is inexcusable and it is the more conspicuous in its contrast to the conscientious and well-reasoned judgment of Gov. Horner. The crime of Giancola and Mrs. Porter deserves the extreme penalty of the law. It was imposed after full and fair trial and due deliberation by a jury of citizens. One of the criminals is a woman and the worse of the two. There is always reluctance in America to impose the death penalty upon a woman. But our law wisely and justly recognizes no sex distinction in crime. The present case shows emphatically how sound that judgment is. The murder was deliberate, planned and procured by this woman for money. If she does not deserve the death penalty no criminal deserves it. Her womanhood did not restrain her evil purposes. Gov. Horner did his plain duty by refusing to interfere with the law. Lieut. Gov. Stelle has shirked his duty. He has made his contribution to the perverted sentimentality which has done so much to condone and encourage criminality of the worst kind and which is helping constantly and conspicuously to cheat the public of its protection from crime.

TO SAVE A GREAT INDUSTRY.

The secretary-treasurer of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, appearing before the Copeland committee, denies the charges of drunkenness and insubordination of members of the crew of the stranded liner President Hoover, and declares "the conduct of the crew was an honor to the American flag." It would be pleasant to believe it. In fact, we assume that the conduct of some of the seamen and all the officers was not objectionable. But the charges against a part of the crew are not to be brushed aside by partisan denials. They were made by reputable men and women, passengers on the ship who spoke from their own knowledge and experience, and had no motive for perjuring themselves.

The conditions in the American marine are well authenticated. They are the result of radical mischief makers who are not bettering the conditions of labor at sea, but using methods which are destroying the industry. The demoralization of the personnel on ships will soon be fatal to the American marine and honest leadership should be the first to recognize it and exert all its influence to correct it.

But the interest of the American people in the survival of American shipping is not to be left to radical agitators. Hundreds of millions of dollars have been invested by the American people in the American marine both directly and through taxes. American ships are important factors in our commercial welfare and in the welfare of millions of workers directly and indirectly involved. American merchant ships are an important factor in national defense. To permit these great values to be destroyed would be an unequaled folly. Senator Copeland and his committee should be able to present practical measures to arrest this anarchical condition and restore discipline and responsibility on all American ships.

TAXES AND BUSINESS IN CANADA.

[St. Louis Post-Dispatch.]

Up in Canada industry is complaining of taxes in pretty much the same language that Washington is hearing. The Canadian government is being told that its policy of heavy taxation is retarding economic recovery.

There is a difference though. In Canada the spokesman of industry's grievances is a government agency. It is the national employment commission, operating under the ministry of labor. Its job is to solve the dominion's unemployment problem. It is doing it, apparently, without regard for any official sensibilities. The head of the commission is Arthur B. Purvis, managing director of Canadian Industries, Ltd., reputedly the country's highest salaried business executive.

Mr. Purvis' procedure was strictly in the business manner. He set out first of all to get the facts and figures. A canvass of the industrial field produced the information. Enterprise after enterprise reported having to defer extensions and improvements because of heavy taxation. On the showing, it was calculated that Canadian industry is now ready to expend $78,000,000 in expansion or betterments if the tax load is lifted. Such investment, it is computed, would give industry the final impetus needed to achieve complete recovery.

The commission has relayed its findings to the government. It proposes that the government remit corporation income taxes to the amount in which any industry undertakes a modernization program. It contends that any loss from reduced taxes would be offset by the saving in relief expenditures accruing from increased employment.

They think in smaller figures up in Canada, but the practice of getting the facts and making the recommendations accordingly is something we might import.

THE LINE HONOR LIST OF PAY EARNERS.

As long as the publishing of top salary lists is a phenomenon of the times, an honor roll of those who last year earned their pay—whatever it was—is suggested by "Newcomer." Among those nominated for this roster are:

—Motor coach operators who simultaneously drove, collected fares, handed out transfers, called out stops, watched light signals, and answered questions.

—Window washers who protected desk papers before raising the sash.

—Laundry workers who didn't lose one sock.

—Cooks who boiled 4-minute eggs four minutes.

—Barbers who didn't talk unless they had something to say.

TO B. FROM M. AFTER LONG YEARS.

I wonder if you are more cold than I,
Whose farewell glance moves over your dead face
But knows no lingering memory of that grace
Of kinship, rapturous joy and love, that high
And eager youth thought deathless. Not a sigh
Lives in my breast to hallow your spent race
With memoried regret, to touch this place
With hope that there are things which do not die.
The gift of grief I cannot bring to you;
Yet strange it is that you who once, for me,
Was mine own self, the world, and heaven, too,
Can now but shadow-dimly seem to be
The man whose lips and breast I sweetly knew ...
I dare disown you here—you are not he!

YOUR SIGNATURE MAKES US BLUE.

This is to tell you about the woman on Lunt avenue who has a mania for blue. The window blinds and curtains are blue, and blue is the dominant color among the ornaments in her window. The entrance light is blue, also the front steps. Not only are the stones bordering the walk and lawn a bright blue but the concrete flower pedestal has a blue cover and the trees are "blue-washed" almost to the limbs. After the recent snow I half expected to see her out with a can of paint and a spray gun tinting the snow. That Smith Woman.

GET RID OF EXCESS FLUID.

THE one who says "If I have heart trouble I do not want to know it" is like an ostrich hiding his head in the sand. If there is anything wrong we should be advised. Why? Because with reasonable care we can prevent extension of the trouble and at the same time increase efficiency and well being. Furthermore, we can guard against those errors of commission which may invite muscle overstrain. Normal pumps can withstand considerable abuse. Not so injured organs, and we should have some idea of just how heavily we can load the circulation.

I have seen many individuals who have felt that they were observing "proper precautions," using a light diet with a small amount of protein [meat] and large quantities of orange juice. Many of this group then wondered why they seemed to bloat, to exhibit swollen ankles at nightfall or edema that spread upward along the legs. This symptom, in many instances, is not due to the heart at all. It comes about because the serum of the blood embodies too little protein and from the further fact that fruit juices may pile up alkalis within the body. When these two factors are taken together water is retained by the cells and puffiness is the result.

Another cause of edema is the excessive use of common salt. When this is replaced by potassium chloride or ammonium chloride, the fluid under the skin recedes promptly provided the kidneys are functioning normally. We must be careful, therefore, not to attribute swelling in every case to the failure of the circulation, as there may be other explanations.

But we do recognize that if the cycle of the blood is not maintained at par, fluid may find its way into the spaces beneath the skin or even between the muscles, and in such a situation rest in bed with the proper use of digitalis will point the way to recovery. But some persons will require additional help. Only with caution should the ordinary intake of water be restricted. Too rapid diuresis [outflow of urine] may be followed by a temporary mental upset, with the patient manifesting bizarre ideas as well as intense emotional confusion. Other accidents, even more serious, may occur. So we must regard waterlogged parts as a condition to be relieved slowly and gradually.

Physicians have recourse to several drugs which will deplete the system of fluids. Among these may be mentioned caffeine, which is contained in both tea and coffee; theobromine, which is found in chocolate; and occasionally digitalis, the medicament par excellence whenever the heart muscle shows signs of weakening. Then there are certain mercury preparations, such as salyrgan, which are aided by acid salts, for example, ammonium nitrate.

Why do we wish to get rid of water which may overflow the tissues? The reason is that we desire to reduce the pressure in the capillaries. High levels in these fine, threadlike vessels will prevent the routine passage of blood from the tiny arteries to the equally slender veins. Rest in bed has a tendency to quiet the blood flow and this is the first essential of treatment. The patient must be comfortable—not restless—and it may be necessary to use sedatives to avoid overactivity. While the Karell diet may be used for a very few days, it must not be continued long because it does not provide enough protein.

We thus return to our old reliable friend, digitalis, which improves the contracting power of the heart and regulates its rhythm. As the beat is slowed, the stroke—so-called—becomes, as a rule, more powerful and longer.

Removal of the thyroid is sometimes a most useful procedure if the patient has been subject to attacks of angina pectoris, but its beneficial effect in failing heart muscle is doubtful.

ON DISHWASHING.

Old Maid writes: Won't you please write an article on the way to wash dishes, pots, and pans? I have relatives at whose homes I am invited to eat. When I sit down at the table I get a nauseated feeling because I know their dishes are not clean. Don't you think disease can be transmitted from fermenting food which remains on unclean utensils? My friends place the dishes in the sink, let the hot water run on them a bit, and lo! they are clean. Perhaps pots and pans stand until used again. Is much harm done through this neglect? Perhaps I am finicky.

REPLY.

An article will appear soon which smites the sloppy dish washers hip and thigh. Very hot water running on dishes is a good cleansing agent, but that is not enough. Strong suds, as well as some chemical, may be needed to make certain that dishes, silverware, and all utensils are free from noxious bacteria.

EXAMINATION ADVISED.

Mrs. D. writes: How long does it take for the bones on the top of a baby's head to close? My baby is 2 years old and there still is a small opening.

REPLY.

The opening [fontanelle] should be closed by the age of 17 or 18 months. However, it may close earlier or later in perfectly normal children. If still open at the age of 2 the child should be examined by your physician. Rickets is a common cause of failure to close.

TWO SKIN DISEASES.

N. R. writes: What is the cause of the skin disease, lupus? Is there any cure?

REPLY.

There are two kinds of lupus—lupus vulgaris and lupus erythematosus. The cause of the former is the tubercle bacillus and treatment is that of tuberculosis in general supplemented by light treatment. The cause of lupus erythematosus is unknown, but the disease is apparently of internal toxic origin. Gold therapy has been used successfully in this form.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY SAM BREWER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON.—Though the British prefer to emphasize the politer side of night life here and to infer that gangs and gangsters are confined to America, London has its own racketeers and they are fully as unpleasant as their American colleagues.

There is one important difference. British courts are so remarkably severe in murder cases and so unsympathetic to the gunman that knives and blackjacks are much more popular here.

Razors and razor blades are the favorite tools of the more savage thugs. Finding that the old style straight razor was likely to slip and cut a throat, leading eventually to the hanging of the razor wielder, most of them have given it up in favor of the safety razor blade.

To keep from cutting their own hands, they usually stick the blade into a raw potato so that only about an eighth of an inch sticks out. That is enough to disfigure the victim and put him out of the fight without usually causing dangerous wounds.

Further north, in Glasgow, where gang fights are everyday affairs, the favorite method is to sew the blade into the peak of a cap so that only a corner sticks out. The cap is worn when the owner is looking for trouble, but the top is pulled over to conceal the blade.

When trouble comes the owner whips off the cap and slashes his victim across the face with a sweep that usually lays his whole cheek open.

In London, night club doorkeepers are the usual victims. Each club keeps a couple of husky doormen to keep out undesirables and in between times to open taxi doors.

London's gangsters like the jobs and if proprietors refuse to give them to the gang candidates at their own price they make a practice of descending in force and carving up the nongang doorman. When he has been dealt with they proceed to smash up the interior of the club.

One or two such raids are usually enough to spoil the club's trade. Clients do not like the possibility of being cut or knocked down with a blackjack in the course of the fray.

Doormen are forced against the wall by the gang while one of them, with his razor, proceeds to slash up his face so he will be marked for the rest of his life. That helps to make outsiders reluctant to compete with the gangsters' candidates for jobs.

In Glasgow, "second city of the empire," the problem is different. Police succeeded in breaking up attempts to install protection racketeering, but they have not been able to break the gangs of the habit of fighting each other.

In Glasgow's east side slums are half a dozen gangs calling themselves the "Kent Stars," the "Beehives," the "Derry Boys," and other such names. Whenever one of them invades another's territory, or on any other pretext that happens along, they sally forth for a pitched battle with clubs, blackjacks, knives, and razors.

For fear of vengeance they never talk to the police. Like other gangsters, they would rather take a chance on going unavenged than be branded "squealers."

Most of them are boys from 17 to 25, who have never worked and live on the dole and petty thieving. Though Glasgow's police are said to be more efficiently equipped in many ways than even the London force, they have not succeeded in ending gang warfare.

But the British in general prefer to ignore the existence of such gangs and talk about gangs of Chicago and New York, with pious horror at the conception of American life they have obtained from the more lurid books and movies.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

ESTATE PROPERTY.

Chicago, Jan. 12.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Several years ago Mr. R. died without leaving a will. The estate consisted of two parcels of land, one in North Dakota and the other in Canada.

1. The court divided this among his brother, sister, and the children of a deceased brother. Two years later the brother died also, leaving no will. His one-third share of the land was then divided equally between the sister and children. The farms are not producing enough to pay the taxes, consequently there is not a market for them.

2. What arrangements can be made now to prevent complications in the event one of the heirs dies?

3. May one of the heirs secure quitclaims and buy the others out, avoiding court expenses, etc.? What is the procedure?

4. There are minors involved, but a guardian was appointed for them in case of father's estate.

5. This will not complicate matters, will it?

6. I was appointed administratrix of both estates. Will it be necessary for me to act in making some arrangement to prevent additional expense? M. B.

1. We assume from your subsequent reference to his one-third share that the court awarded undivided interest to each of the beneficiaries, but did not physically partition the property.

2. A physical partition would be one way if the nature of the property makes it possible.

3. Yes, if all of the parties are of legal age and ready to coöperate. If either of the estates have not been probated this might be raised as an objection in a subsequent sale, but if enough time has elapsed you might find a purchaser who would waive the objection.

4. This would alter our answer to question No. 3. The only way to produce a good title where minor interests are involved would be by partition proceedings.

5. Yes.

6. We advise you to go over your facts in a personal interview with an attorney.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

WAGE CLAIMS.

Chicago, Jan. 11.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Is there a law in Chicago or Illinois prohibiting an employer from holding the employé's salary to finance his business, and if so what is the punishment, if any?

2. In case there is a chattel mortgage on the fixtures is there any way to hold same for wages? A. R.

1. In general the employé has a civil right to recover the agreed wages.

2. In general, the chattel mortgage would come ahead of the wage claims, if that is what you mean to ask.

The Illinois statute authorizes recovery of attorney fees on wage claims. Presumably it was the purpose of the legislature that the fees so allowed should be sufficient to enable the claimants to employ counsel, but in practice the courts have often allowed inadequate fees or none at all, so that many attorneys ask for pay in advance. The legal aid bureau of the United Charities, in deserving cases, assists those who are unable to employ an attorney.

GRAMMAR NEGLECTED.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—E. B. P. asks why it is that after twelve years of schooling the young people cannot speak correct English. The solution is simple. No matter what may be said to the contrary, English grammar is not taught. In the elementary schools the subject is dealt with incidentally or, probably more correctly speaking, accidentally and without rule and reason.

A pupil enters high school and finds that he is compelled to take a number of subjects that require a very thorough knowledge of the rules of English grammar, of which he is ignorant. In order to keep up with his high school work he has little time to give to a subject in which he should have been well grounded before he graduated from the elementary school. Thus he is hampered at the very beginning of his high school work. He finds that he has plenty of company and they all get by some way, deciding no doubt that to speak correct English is not at all necessary. As to the study of English grammar "why, the word 'grammar' has been liquidated." I have heard the poor youngsters say so.

A head assistant who has always believed that English grammar should and can be taught successfully in the elementary schools, wrote a book on the subject for the use of pupils in grades six, seven, and eight. Publishers would not handle it, saying that there was no demand for such a book by the principals of the elementary schools. So what is to be done? I invested in a number of English grammars and taught my children. Others might do the same. M. H.

MR. A. M. AND HIS WEEVILS.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—Your correspondent, A. M., is a big, brave he-man boss, making his family eat spoiled food, dress in castoff clothing, and doing without everything except what he says they can have. That is not living. It's just existing. REX CLARK.

PITY.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—To think that such a contemptible creature as A. M. would call himself a man! He's just the type that beats women and glories in the beating. I would be thoroughly ashamed of myself to say that I would buy oatmeal with weevils in it for my family, rummage sale clothing, etc. May I ask where he gets enough money to buy a paper, or does he wait for some one to throw one away so he can retrieve it? I pity his wife and four children, who have to put up with him. IRMA KUPFER.

HERE'S AN IDEA.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—The girls in our office have decided that if A. M., writer of Self-Portrait, would get a gun and put his family out of their misery he would have the fourteen bucks all for himself. GRACE SCHUMAN.

FOR SPECIAL OCCASIONS.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—I just read A. M.'s "Self-Portrait." He is one humdinger of a manager, all right. I'm willing to bet that he even allows his wife to use salt and pepper in her cooking on Sundays and holidays. E. B. W.

QUITE A FELLOW.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—The self-important A. M. in this morning's Voice is quite a fellow. Lord and master over four helpless children and one neglected wife who needs a permanent wave, it was really big of him to get her a washing machine. He'll get his just reward for this, I am sure.

Mr. A. M., you'll get $14 a week for the rest of your working days. Any one with a one track mind generally does. My heart goes out to your kiddies eating oats and weevils. I'd like to treat them to a soda and a sack of candy just to bring a little joy to them that they deserve.

I'm one of those "sticks" who loves and appreciates his wife and daughter. ERLE H. PERRY.

OPPORTUNITY OVERLOOKED.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—As another high powered economist with honor except at home, I resent A. M.'s wastefulness. Had he waited a few minutes he could have had the oatmeal for nothing. The grocer was throwing it away. T. R. CRAVENS.

IN KIND.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—To A. M., whose article, "Self-Portrait," I have read over and over: I didn't know such men as you lived. I would love to have you in my clutches for one day. I would show you your place. You spineless creature, you're no man, you're an animal. MACEL L. BRITTON.

HAS HE ANY ILK?

Barrington, Ill., Jan. 21.—As long as A. M. dominates the wife and kids and is custodian of the family purse he will likely continue to earn $14 per week, while poor slaves like myself will continue to struggle along on $60 per week so we can lavish money on our wives and kids for beauty culture, bridge lessons, theater parties, electric appliances, fur coats, vacation trips, and, in fact, everything their dear hearts desire that we slaves can possibly provide by hook or crook and in so providing create more jobs [of $14 a week and more] to keep other men and themselves at work. I don't know what A. M. lives for. Personally, I'd be very unhappy if I didn't have a fair lady for whom I could don my armor and do daily battle; whom I could go out and fight for, not with. For A. M. and his ilk I recommend a generous dose of carbon monoxide to be taken internally. W. H. K.

SHE DIDN'T WANT A REWARD.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—One of my patrons asked her husband to mail a letter to me containing currency. Before he reached his loop office he had lost the letter. He telephoned and asked me to notify him in case the letter was mailed by some one to me.

During my absence a lady telephoned that she had noticed a letter under a gentleman's seat on the elevated and told him about it. He said that the letter did not belong to him and wouldn't even pick it up. She said, "Well, I will take care of it." She said she had opened the letter, discovered the money in it, and was stamping the letter and mailing it to me, and would call the next day to see if it arrived. She would not leave her name or address. The letter came and in it all of the currency. This lady again telephoned during my absence and was told that the gentleman in question and myself both wanted to get in touch with her, but she refused to leave her name, as she said she did not want to be rewarded.

It is a grand thing to know there are a few honest people left 'n this world. ELIZABETH DEDEKIND.

NEWSBOYS' NEWS JUDGMENT.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—Any boy depending on TRIBUNE sales for a living would know better than to give page 1 prominence to the utterance of Viscount Craigavon, Ulster premier, while Eamon de Valera, prime minister of Ireland, and colleagues must be satisfied with page 6. T. F. G.

COMMEMORATE CENTENNIAL OF TELEGRAPH KEY

New York, Jan. 23.—[Special.]—One hundred years ago tomorrow night, Samuel Finley Breese Morse stood before a group of distinguished Americans in New York university on Washington square and pressed the key of a strange instrument which made monotonous, clicking sounds. Over ten miles of wire flashed this strange message: "Attention, the universe! By kingdoms, right wheel!"

Tonight in an auditorium of a New York university building on the same site, this history making drama was reënacted and broadcast to the nation in a ceremony commemorating the centennial of the first public demonstration of Morse's telegraph instrument.

$15,000 FOR HURT FEELINGS IS SET ASIDE BY COURT

New York, Jan. 23.—[Special.]—Mrs. Gladys Cragin's feelings may have been damaged by an attempt to shunt her into Bellevue hospital, but not $15,000 worth, according to Supreme Court Justice Julius Miller.

Mrs. Cragin, tall, blonde divorced wife of a Wall street broker, was awarded the $15,000 by a jury which heard her accuse George G. Zazriskie, an attorney, of conspiring to send her to a psychopathic ward because she spurned his advances.

"The jury was authorized to find that the defendant had acted maliciously and without probable cause," Justice Miller wrote in his decision, on file today, "but the court is of the opinion that the verdict of $15,000 is excessive."

He set aside the verdict and ordered a new trial unless Mrs. Cragin stipulated that she would accept a $9,000 award. She said she would confer over the week-end with her attorney.

PARADE OF GIRLS PLANNED TO FIGHT HOSIERY BOYCOTT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23.—(AP)—The American Federation of Hosiery Workers announced today it would fight the current boycott of silk stockings and that it was discussing plans for a "save our jobs" parade here of unemployed girls.

Emil Rieve, federation president, said the boycott against Japanese silk was engineered by a combination of wealthy women, intellectuals, and left wingers having no stake in the industry and no jobs of their own to lose.

"The boycott feeds the breadline and it cannot inflict any appreciable damage on Japan or change the course of what is happening in the Orient," said Rieve.

He said marchers would arrive here by special train Friday.

SODA ASH JOHNNY TELLS SON, 70, '1ST 100 YRS. HARDEST'

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—John Michael Horan, better known to his associates as Soda Ash Johnny, celebrated his 100th birthday today in his home with relatives and friends. The centenarian has been an employé of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad for 83 years.

While cutting a huge birthday cake he said to his son, William, 70 years old, a locomotive engineer for the railroad:

"Son, remember the old saw, 'The first 100 years are hardest.'"

He received his nickname years ago after he originated a process for cleaning steam boilers with soda ash. Officials of the railroad held a birthday party for him yesterday.

Dunham Woods Club Plans Gala 2 Day Ice Fete

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE winter weather in Chicago and its suburbs may not be as conducive to skiing and winter sports in general as it is at Sun Valley or Lake Placid, but that does not deter the stalwart members of the Dunham Woods club from planning an ice carnival for next week-end. On Saturday night dinner will be served in the clubhouse and afterwards there will be an informal ice masquerade on the club rink in which only amateurs will take part.

Every one will come dressed in some sort of costume of his own choosing. Hugo Layer, teacher of waltz and school figures, will be master of ceremonies and will direct a grand march. The Lone Skaters club, which was started as a joke by those who were not as good performers as some of their friends, will give a short exhibition of some routine figures under the direction of Charles R. Lindsay III. and Mrs. J. McWilliams Stone, two of the originators of the club. All the members will be costumed alike.

On Sunday members of the Chicago Figure Skating club will demonstrate their skill and grace. A buffet supper will be served later in the clubhouse. Helen Koblitz and Robert Vorgfelt, who participated in the Tribune Silver Skates contest, will perform, as will Robin Lee, Henry Reimein, and Elsie Phelan.

Movie of Chicago's Big Fire Inspires Exhibit.

An exhibition of table service that has survived the great Chicago fire of 1871 has been inspired by the arrival of the motion picture "In Old Chicago," which is to have its première Thursday night at the Apollo theater. Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, Mrs. Walter S. Brewster, Mrs. John B. Drake, Miss Alice Gerstenberg, Miss Mary Pomeroy Green, Mrs. Carter H. Harrison, Mrs. Robert O. Harvey, Mrs. Freeman Hinckley, Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. Frank G. Logan, Mrs. L. Hamilton McCormick, Mrs. Phillip Miller, and Mrs. Jesse Mather Watkins are among those who will show family heirlooms in the exhibition which is opening today at Field's. Also on view will be the costumes worn by Alice Faye in the movie. The Saturday night performance of "In Old Chicago" will be a benefit for Grove House.

The china Mrs. Matthews has loaned to the exhibition was inherited from her mother, Mrs. John Stillwell, who was a cousin of two wives of Presidents of the United States, Mrs. Rutherford B. Hayes and Mrs. Benjamin Harrison. That loaned by Mrs. Linn came from the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William Blair, which stood for 50 years on Michigan avenue north of Harrison street—just escaping the Chicago fire.

The china Mrs. Armour has loaned to the exhibition was part of the service in the Prairie avenue home of her father-in-law, the first Philip D. Armour. The set from Mrs. Brewster belonged to her great-grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. B. P. Hutchinson. The plates Mrs. Drake has loaned were purchased in Paris after the flight of Napoleon and Eugenie by Mrs. Benjamin Carver, sister of the first Mrs. John B. Drake and sister-in-law of Mrs. Levi Z. Leiter. The first Mr. Drake was proprietor of the famous Tremont house in the '50s.

George M. Pullmans' Tea Set Will Be Shown.

Mrs. Miller has loaned Royal Crown Derby china and a silver tea set that belonged to her grandparents, the late Mr. and Mrs. George M. Pullman, whose home was at 18th street and Prairie avenue. The Green family home at La Salle and Elm streets was destroyed in the fire, but a new home was rebuilt on the same site, and Miss Green is its present chatelaine.

The vases Mrs. Harvey has loaned also were purchased in Paris, but they escaped the fire by arriving two weeks after it had happened. Mrs. Harvey's maternal grandfather, D. N. Fisk, was the purchaser. On the other side of the family Mrs. Harvey is descended from J. K. Botsford, who came here in 1836 and settled on the then fashionable residential part of Wabash avenue. Many dignitaries have been served from the plates Mrs. Harrison and her daughter, Mrs. Harrison Manierre, have loaned, for they came from the home of the first Carter Harrison, who was five times the mayor of Chicago.

The tea set Miss Gerstenberg has loaned is more than 100 years old, and was brought from Germany by her family. Miss Gerstenberg is the co-author with Miss Herma Clark of "When Chicago Was Young."

Art Institute Reception To Open New Exhibit.

The Art institute has cards out for a reception on Friday evening, Feb. 4, from 8 to 10 o'clock to open a loan exhibition of paintings, drawings, and prints by Giambattista and his son, Giandomenico Tiepolo; a Swedish tercentenary art exhibition, and paintings by Nicolae Remisoff. The Tiepolos were the last of the great galaxy of Venetian painters whose works contributed so much to the art of the world, and it is expected this exhibition will rival in public interest the Rembrandt and Van Gogh shows.

The Tiepolos will be hung until March 6. The Swedish exhibition is the most extensive one of paintings and decorative arts ever sent out of Sweden. It and the Remisoffs also will be shown until March 6.

The institute also has invitations out for a preview of works of art from the home of the late Mrs. Martin A. Ryerson on Wednesday. Most of the paintings, sculpture, oriental, and decorative art that will be shown in gallery 58 has never been exhibited publicly. The exhibition will be open to the public next Saturday and Sunday.

Chorus and Symphony Focus Musical Spotlight on Finland

Singers from Cold Baltic Praised for Warmth.

BY CECIL SMITH.

The Helsinki university chorus of Finland, which in its native tongue rejoices in the name of Ylioppilaskunnan Laulajat, made its first Chicago appearance in Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon. The concert was one of the most heart-warming occasions of the winter, for a large audience that included many Finnish people gave the visiting singers a sympathetic and delighted welcome.

It is small wonder that the advent of the Helsinki chorus has been preceded by many fanfares of national pride. The tone of the group is robust and full, yet lustrous and tractable. Not even the most theatrical of our American virtuoso choirs surpasses the Helsinki chorus in clarity and precision, yet the Finnish singers never so much as skirt the fringe of shoddy sensationalism.

The singing of a chorus, after all, reproduces the taste and approach of its conductor. Martti Turunen, the leader of the Helsinki chorus, combines complete technical command in choral direction with solid, satisfying musicianship. These desirable attributes are given life by an emotionalism some of us rank outsiders had not expected to find in a musician from the cold shores of the Baltic.

The Continental ensemble, a group of four seasoned performers now touring America under the managerial banner of S. Hurok, stopped off to give a "concert show" at the Studebaker theater last night. Victor Chenkin, diseur, sings character songs in costume. Emma Runitch [Mrs. Hurok], technically a contralto but actually a tenor, specializes in popular and folk songs, which she delivers with tons of emotion. Raphael, bald as a billiard ball, plays the concertina [a pint size accordion not much bigger than an old fashioned box camera]. Leo Lefleur at the piano responds clairvoyantly to the unbridled emotions of his three partners.

All this is excellent café entertainment. Unfortunately the show was given not in a café, but in the formal surroundings of the Studebaker theater, with no food and drink to help out. Call it the most mysterious booking of the year, and let the matter drop.

At the Woman's club theater yesterday Mildred Dilling showed her audience how skilfully and beautifully the harp can be played by one who devotes her whole time to solo recitals upon that instrument. Two works written for the harp by Tournier and Prokofieff's little C major prelude [often played in transcription by pianists] gave evidence that Miss Dilling's gracious taste is equal in abundance to her technique. In other parts of her program, however, nothing she did could convince me that paraphrased piano music sounds right on the harp.

Tomford Harris, Chicago pianist, gave attention in Kimball hall yesterday to Hindemith's Third sonata, never before played here, and to Carl Maria von Weber's Second sonata, in A flat, virtually forgotten everywhere. The complications of a busy afternoon made me miss the Hindemith. This important work, however, was reviewed in these columns in April, 1937, after its American première by Jesus Maria Sanromà at the Library of Congress festival in Washington. The Weber sonata proved to be a curiosity worth hearing once, but not twice. Mr. Harris played it fluently and imaginatively, though not without exaggerated mannerisms of style.

Illinois Orchestra Plays Sibelius Tone Poem.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

"Tapiola" resembles the dessert only through an accident of name. This tone poem of Sibelius, introduced to Chicago yesterday afternoon by the Illinois Symphony orchestra in the course of its regular Great Northern theater concert, derives its title from Tapio, the forest god of Finnish mythology.

Since the commentators have been amusing themselves for decades reading into the music of Sibelius suggestions of the forbidding north and of the swish of stern gray seas, it is a relief to learn that the composer forestalled them in this work by openly avowing a very similar content and by authorizing a description of it to be affixed to the score.

"Tapiola" is supposed to represent the spirit of the northern forests, gloomy, savage, brooding. The music is spare and gray, with that icy purity which we have become accustomed to finding in the composer's later works. ["Tapiola" dates from 1925 only.]

It was well performed yesterday, with Izler Solomon, conductor of the Illinois orchestra, keeping its lines sufficiently simple and gaunt. That was a skilfully handled decrescendo at the end.

Lois Bichl, principal cello of the Woman's Symphony, served Mr. Solomon's outfit as soloist yesterday. She played the Boccherini B-flat concerto with great fluency and [in the second movement] with a rich, singing tone quality. Things got a little on the harsh side in the earlier part.

Sponsored by affiliated clubs of the Chicago Council of Catholic Women, the glee club of the University of Notre Dame came to the Grand ballroom of the Palmer house yesterday to present a program of sacred and secular music. Conducted by Joseph J. Casasanta, the group demonstrated its ability to sing in a straightforward, intelligent way and to make use of the naturally attractive tone colorings of the unforced male voice.

Annemarie Wirz Balke and Riger R. Balke, resident duo-pianists, played a program of Bach, Schumann, Debussy, and Rachmaninoff in the Beaux Arts salon of the Medinah club yesterday. Their playing is delectably smooth and effortless, lacking a little in richness and vividness, but more than making up for such faults by the remarkable impression of unity which it conveys.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

The Week's Wash

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 23.—Lupe Velez and Bruce Cabot, an unusual twosome at the Hollywood Brown Derby. . . . In one week, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt has squired Claire Dodd, Margaret Lindsay and Florence Rice, which will give you an idea. . . . Best bet for stardom in this town, for my money, is Wendy Barrie, but the studios have blundered in handling her. . . . She's got everything—looks, intelligence, a fine voice. . . . A Chase National bank vice president will follow Margot Grahame to Hollywood. . . . Sir Stork is expected at the Claude Rainses, the Mervyn Le Roys, the Stepin Fetchit, the Lou Brings. . . . Henny Youngman arrived here with the tale of the Japanese ventriloquist whose dummy is tagged Charlie Mikado. . . . The De Marcos are a sock at the Trocadero. . . . Joan Crawford, Jerome Kern, Groucho Marx, and other celebs kept them on the floor for forty-five minutes at their opening . . . as a result, they may go into the Irving Berlin picture. . . . Last midnight benefit performance for Ted Healy's widow and child grossed $12,000.

Wendy Barrie.
A bet for stardom.

This town had its ear glued to the loudspeakers to cheer the Jimmy Braddock win. . . . Pat O'Brien, Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Bill Grady, Mrs. Leo Spitz, Carole Lombard, Tony De Marco, and your reporter were the most vociferous Braddock boosters, but everybody here got a great thrill from Jim's upset triumph. . . . Tommy Manville's newest flame is Gracie Martin. . . . Pulitzer prize is a toss up between "Of Mice and Men" and Odet's "Golden Boy." The Kenny Baker baby is expected in April. . . . Jerry Wald has switched from Leah Ray to Rosemary Lane, or did I tell you before? . . . The 500,000 feet of film shot in "Robin Hood" will be cut to 10,000. . . . M. G. M. is trying to wreck the Ilona Massey-Zoltan Egyed attachment, preparatory to building her up as a glamor girl. . . . He came all the way from Budapest to express his "torch," only to find Leo the lion as a rival.

George Burns of Burns and Allen celebrated his 42d birthday at Paul Whiteman's Coconut Grove. . . . One of the onlookers was Micky Arnstein. . . . Mose Gumbel, out here to line up advertisments for the professional music man's brochure, is going back with $7,000 in page ads. . . . He and Rocco Vocco found the locals liberal, and you might make a small bet that Gumbel will join Vocco's outfit. . . . June Travis and Alan Lane are serious. . . . Marion Martin and Leonard Goldstein, the Buck Jones' hill-billy, are making the spots. . . . Tommy Farr, after the Braddock defeat, turned to Honey Johnson for consolation. . . . Martha Raye's new temperature is a doctor.

What's going on in New York? The Jack Kirkland-Dick Watts' scramble, and the Jimmy Powers-Ed Van Every-Jack Miley triology hint that there's thunder over Manhattan. . . . Miley lost a decision to Dizzy Dean earlier in the year, so his record is unsullied. . . . Darryl Zanuck orders crêpe suzettes at the Clover club to plug the fire scenes in "In Old Chicago." . . . Now Ella Logan and Cully Richards say they'll be married in the spring . . . what year? . . . Studio dopes out here insist on date conflicts for their previews: Warner's "Gold Is Where You Find It" was previewed the same night as "Everybody Sing," a Metro film. . . . Good Morning!

A "frail," a few drinks, a dance in a "joint"; a moment of white, blinding rage, a quick, fierce act—and a nice boy who had never, in all his clean young life, been in trouble before, goes to the penitentiary on a charge of manslaughter!

It COULD happen to anybody. It DOES happen to William Jordan—and crushes the heart out of him. . . .

Most of the action deals with life in a penitentiary. The picture, after the first scenes, takes on the nature of an expose of prison conditions, the men who are in control of prisoners, and the desperate humans over whom they have the whip hand. . . .

It is a grisly story, with its killings, jailbreaks, cruelty; not pleasant to witness, but notable because of fine cast performances.

John Howard is most appealing as the boy who pays so dearly for a birthday celebration. Walter Connolly, as the district attorney and later warden of the penitentiary, gives a magnificent portrayal of a man both hard and humane. Golly, he's a good actor! The playing is all commendable, as is directing.

Otherwise, "Penitentiary" is brief, bitter, and utterly depressing.

See you soon.

Smart Boleros Will Dominate Spring Scenery

BY RHEA SEEGER.

You might as well get used to the wave of boleros that is taking the town, because the jackets are scheduled to appear in even greater profusion before summer weather arrives.

Bolero dresses, bolero suits, and brief boleros just by themselves are the rage of the season. Most of them just miss the waistline, but some of the new arrivals clear the belt line by as much as five to six inches, being almost microscopic numbers with short sleeves and precious little materials in the jacket part.

What a good imaginative shopper can contrive in the use of boleros will make fashion history.

Take the simplest dull black frock you own, snap it into life, with a mustard gold bolero and wrap around your waistline a wide crushed belt of leaf green silk. This idea can be worked with half a dozen good contrasts of color. Such combines are especially good for wear under winter coats. Later equally exciting color schemes will be seen on the street without benefit of a calming down coat.

If you like black and white you'll enjoy the grand assortments of crisp white bolero jackets that should arrive any day. These will have snappy young outlines and will come in all kinds of fabrics. Available now are the clever long sleeved boleros of unusual color—butter beige mauve, delicate chartreuse green, coral, dusty blues, and powder pinks. These top uncomplicated dresses of brown, blue, deep green, rust, copper, and the dozens of good blacks.

Dinner and dance dresses are bolero conscious, too. One fluttery affair of lettuce green net has a bolero jacket of rose red; a white waltz gown has a braided silk jacket of deep dubonnet red.

You can buy boleros or you can make your own, but you'll wear them whenever you get the chance, because they are refreshing, young, simple, and smart, unbeatable new spring loot that can be worn every day.

The Housewife

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

One of the speediest ways to heat a cold bathroom or to keep it warm late at night when the furnace fire is low is to plug in a new and good looking little electric heater which circulates and warms the air at the same time.

This little portable stove is only about 18 inches tall and is made of aluminum with a cool bakelite handle. It weighs less than an electric iron and it is attractive in design. There are no moving parts.

It plugs into any wall outlet and uses either AC or DC current.

Women Outdo Menfolk in Advancing Education

New York, Jan. 23.—[Special.]—Once again it's the woman who pays—even for the advancement of education. The weaker sex has outdone its men folk, contributing $654,000 to male donations of $56,000, according to the report of the alumnae committee of seven women's colleges, made public today. Previously women had donated chiefly to health foundations.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

This is a special letter, produced by request from a reader who wants some tips, to the woman of 40 and over:

Don't try to look like your granddaughter. Look smart in your own mature fashion, which is now considered something very smart indeed.

Watch your makeup. Use rouge and lipstick, by all means, but apply it with rather a stingy hand and be sure the shades aren't hard. Be particularly careful about rouge. If you're white haired, choose a shade on the pinkish side; apply it rather high, blending it out toward the temples. Never draw it down below the corners of your mouth. This gives a long, old line that adds years to your face.

Don't dress your hair low. The new fashion of hair swept upward is exactly your dish. Letting the hair flutter low around your face gives the illusion of a sagging contour. Don't let it drop down below the natural hair line in back. Better yet, swish it upward.

And in either case keep it well groomed. "Every hair in place" isn't at all a bad motto for the mature woman. Only the young and dashing can get away with the casual effect.

Use a little oil on your eyelids; it makes your eyes look brighter. And, if your brows and lashes are pale, don't be afraid of mascara. Try it, behind locked doors, until you can apply it deftly. Then step out with it on. You'll like the effect, especially if your hair is gray.

Don't use much powder. If there are lines in your face, powder will emphasize them if it's applied too generously or the shade is wrong. A light dusting of it in the right shade is youthful; too much is ageing.

GUNHAMMERED GOLD

By Luke Short

[Copyright: 1938: By Frederick Dilley Glidden.]

SYNOPSIS.

Poco St. Vrain arrives in the western town of Christian City, escaping a pursuing troop of cavalry. There Two-Way Hornbeck approaches him with a scheme. Abe McCandless, who framed Poco and made an outlaw of him, owns a gold mine on a mountain peak. Two insurance agents sent to meet at the mine and bring down the gold are murdered by two different bands of outlaws. Two-Way persuades Poco to pose as one of the agents, Jake Finger, whose papers he has, and get the gold. At the mountain camp Poco finds Espey Cardowan, killer gunman, posing as the other agent. They dare not give each other away to Shayne, the mine manager, and his lovely daughter, Kate.

INSTALMENT VII.

PACKING THE GOLD.

Cardowan had been talking to Kate but now he looked across at Poco. "But his time's near up, ma'am. We'll get him." He smiled cunningly now. "This company I work for, ma'am, never forgets. And when we get him"—he snapped his fingers swiftly—"there won't be any trial, ma'm."

Kate said slowly, "You mean you'd kill him—right there, without justice?"

"He's killed a dozen men, miss, shot them in the back, tortured them, broken them, doublecrossed them, too. He's hated by outlaws as much as he is by the law."

Poco shoved his plate away. "But he's a queer one, Miss Kate," he began gently. "First thing in his favor is, he's got brains. Now this St. Vrain, I remember one story about him that just shows you." He looked up at Cardowan. "You may have heard this story, Herb. If you have, let me tell it, anyway."

He addressed Shayne and Kate now, and most of the men were listening. "There's a dumb ranny of a Texas outlaw down in our country by the name of Espey Cardowan. Ever heard of him?"

"I have," Kate said quickly. "I've heard of St. Vrain, too."

"Well, this Cardowan made the mistake of cold-decking St. Vrain in a card game one night below the border, and then pulling out of the game behind guns of his own men. St. Vrain didn't forget that. Word came to him that a troop of soldiers who'd been campaigning against the Apaches for three months would be paid off in the town of White Bend. St. Vrain knew that meant money in the town, and a lot of it. He figured the word would get to Cardowan, too, because Cardowan was riding that country with his bunch. Well, a bunch of rangers had been working on this same Apache hunt and they teamed with the army now and then. They were at a town about fifteen miles away that night. Seven Troughs." He looked at Cardowan. "Ever hear of it, Herb?"

Cardowan nodded curtly.

"The army paid off on Saturday and left Sunday. The minute they'd left town, Cardowan's gang drifted in and kind of took over the town, waiting for Monday when the bank's doors would be open. St. Vrain had a man there in town. As soon as he saw Cardowan's bunch drift in, the man got word to St. Vrain. St. Vrain forged a note from the captain of the troopers asking the rangers to drift over to White Bend and stay there till further notice. The army employed civilian scouts then, and St. Vrain took the note to the ranger captain himself and claimed to be an army scout."

"What happened?" Shayne asked.

Poco smiled slowly. "Why, just after sunrise, the rangers came pounding into White Bend and camped at the only hotel in town. When the bank opened that morning there was six of them sitting on the hotel porch making jokes with the nigger that swept out the bank across the street."

Before Poco's last word had died, the table was laughing uproariously, Kate and Shayne along with the men.

When the laughter had quieted, Kate said: "I had no idea these outlaws had a sense of humor. They generally look pretty grim."

"St. Vrain has," Poco drawled, watching Cardowan. "Maybe that's why he'll live longer than that dumb Texan of a Cardowan."

The meal broke up then and Cardowan and Poco were called into Shayne's place, which was double locked and shuttered. There Poco showed his credentials, had them accepted, and then the real business of weighing the gold got under way. Shayne had it stored in an ironbound chest which was double locked and bolted to the floor under his bunk. When it was finally freed and dragged into the middle of the room, the scales brought out and tested for accuracy, it was opened. A tin container had been fitted inside the oak chest and the gold lay loose in it, filling it almost to the top with its dull yellow sheen.

Shayne pointed to it and said: "Ever see so much?"

Poco, sitting on the edge of the bunk, looked at it carelessly. "Lots of times." He swiveled his head to Cardowan, who was staring at it with eyes wide and shiny with greed. "Have you, Herb?"

Cardowan shook his head. "That's the most I ever saw," he drawled.

There was an inordinate amount of time spent in weighing the gold and in signing papers. When finally Shayne wrote his signature to the last paper he sighed and looked up at Kate, who was curled up on the other bunk watching the procedure.

"There. The biggest job of my life is done." Shayne smiled at Poco and Cardowan. "You'll sleep with this stuff tonight. I never want to see it again. You'll have to pack this stuff out," he continued. "Kate has made up some canvas sacks you can pack it in so it'll ride on the mules. We'll help you put it away if you give the word."

"I reckon we can," Poco said. "We've nothing to do tonight but get this stuff ready. Give us the sacks and we'll take it over to our shack."

He and Cardowan lifted the chest between them and took it over to their cabin.

Soon they were at work with the gold dust, pouring it into the sacks and tying them, working silently and swiftly while a tension settled and grew as time went by. When the job was finally finished and the sacks stored they faced each other across the empty chest.

Cardowan blurted out: "Let's settle this now. We've got to go down that trail single file. Who'll go first?"

Poco said: "Why worry about that?"

Cardowan dropped his cigaret, cursing, and said: "Do you think I'd let you behind me with a gun?"

Poco lay back against the wall and pulled his feet up on the edge of the bunk. "There won't be any guns, Joker. Guns, knives, ropes—they'll all be in those mule packs."

Cardowan considered this a long time. Presently he said: "But who'll go first?"

Poco shrugged. "Why not cut cards?"

Cardowan nodded and got up to search for a pack of cards.

"Low man leads off on the trail. If we tie, we discount the suit and draw again. Suit you?" When Cardowan nodded, Poco said: "Go ahead."

Cardowan turned up a jack. He sat back and watched Poco for any mismove as Poco reached out and turned up a seven.

Cardowan's face broke into a relieved smile. "The trap's shut, Poco. How does it feel?"

Poco yawned and rose. "Don't hide any of that stuff in your boots, Joker. We'll watch each other dress tomorrow morning."

He stepped out into the night, and immediately felt the cool, steady wind pressing against him. Poco's thoughts were beating around in his skull like a bird in a cage. For he was trapped. He didn't have any men waiting below to meet him.

Thinking thus, he heard a sound behind him, and at the same time Kate Shayne's voice said: "Hello."

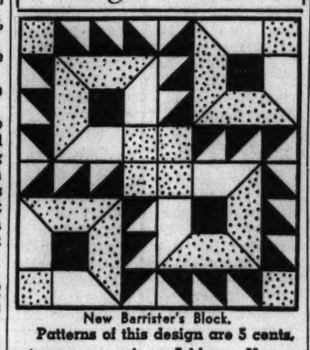
Quilt Elaborates on Theme of Old English Pattern



New Barrister's Block.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Folks having the old quilt pattern, "Barrister Block," will immediately appreciate this "New Barrister's Block," an elaborate modification of one of the old English patterns which originated in Connecticut and migrated westward. The original four patch design was pieced in the early colonial days, and the second and more unusual pattern was designed about 25 years later. "New Barrister's Block" is not a difficult pattern to piece, especially when a combination of printed and plain materials is used. The blocks are set together to form an all-over design, and the quilt is finished with a three inch border and a one-half inch blue bias binding.

Can she bake a cherry pie, Billy boy?

If she can't she'd better be learning, for here it is almost February, the month for cherry pies and cherry puddings. It's not only that February brings the birthday of a boy who chopped a cherry tree and later became father of his country. It's also that there are two other holidays in February for which the red color of cherries is vastly appropriate.

Because these two patriotic birthdays and St. Valentine's day fall within the same month, and because cherry recipes are popular during that time, February brings with it a national cherry week. This year the dates are Feb. 15 to 22.

Cherry Ice Cream Pie
[Serves eight]

1 baked pastry shell
1 pint vanilla ice cream
1 No. 2 can pitted red cherries [unsweetened]
¾ cup sugar
1 stick cinnamon
2 tablespoons cornstarch
Whipped cream [sweetened slightly]

Add the sugar and stick of cinnamon to the juice drained from the cherries and cook for 5 minutes. Remove cinnamon and add cornstarch mixed to a paste with a little cold water, and the cherries. Cook until thickened and clear. Cool and chill. Spread the ice cream in the pastry shell, cover with the cherry sauce, and top with whipped cream. Serve at once.

Cherry Tarts
[Six tarts]

1 No. 2 can pitted red cherries [unsweetened]
1¼ cups sugar
⅓ cup flour
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon butter
Tart shells

Mix sugar and flour and add to cherries with salt. Cook over low heat until the mixture is thickened and clear. Add butter. Cool slightly and pour into pastry shells which have been baked at 400 degrees for 3 minutes. Continue baking at 375 degrees until pastry is browned. Cool and serve plain or topped with whipped cream.

Cherry Cake
[One loaf, 8 by 12 inches]

½ cup shortening
1½ cups sugar
½ teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon lemon extract
½ cup drained, finely chopped maraschino cherries
½ cup evaporated milk
½ cup water
3 cups cake flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
4 egg whites

Cream shortening and sugar. Add flavoring and chopped cherries and mix thoroughly. Add milk and water alternately with sifted dry ingredients, beating until smooth after each addition. Fold in the egg whites which have been beaten until stiff but not dry. Spread batter in a greased and floured shallow loaf pan, 8 by 12 inches, and bake at 350 degrees for 40 to 45 minutes. Cool and ice with boiled frosting.

Cherry Crisp
[Serves six]

2 cups drained unsweetened red cherries
½ cup juice
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind.
Topping as described

Combine flour, sugar and lemon rind, and add to cherries and juice. Pour the mixture into a buttered baking dish and top with a crumbly mixture made by combining 1 cup sugar, ¾ cup flour, 7 tablespoons butter, and ¼ teaspoon nutmeg. Bake half an hour in a 375 degree oven and serve with cream or whipped cream.

Housework, Dry Red Hands Made Soft and Lovely

There is one sure way that has never failed to make hands soft, smooth and white. The way Doctors, Dentists and Nurses do . . . and every one knows how important it is for them to keep their hands in good condition.

Hands get rough and red when essential skin elements are destroyed by harsh treatment, dishwashing and bad weather. The way, then, to make them soft and white, is to replace these essential elements. To do this, get Mystic cream from any druggist or department store. Mystic cream supplies everything your skin needs to keep it from chapping and getting rough and red.

Apply it at night before retiring. It is absorbed almost instantly. Mystic cream is not the least bit sticky or greasy, and it won't stain. Results are quick and sure.

No work will be too harsh. Bad weather won't bother you. You will always have soft, smooth, lovely hands if you get the habit of using Mystic cream. This simple treatment never fails.

Inexpensive Pajama Ensemble

WOMAN'S AND MISS' PAJAMAS.

You'll want to find all kinds of excuses for being lazy once you possess these smart pajamas! You can make the garments yourself without any trouble, at small expense, and in no time at all. There are two ways you can wear them, with the blouse over the trousers or in tuck-in fashion. All washables, both silk and cotton, will make up well, and the present season makes soft flannel a good idea. Select colors as gay as you want them, or as dainty as your soul desires.

The sleeves may be either long or short. In the former case the garment is ideal for lounging, too. The collar is a Peter Pan style, and on the bodice is a large pocket which may be "monogrammed" with the aid of embroidery pattern No. E-11012. This design is available for 10 cents extra.

Buttons accent the front closing. They may be rather large ones, placed far apart, or tiny ones arranged in close groups. If you wear the blouse over the trousers, wind a self-fabric belt around the waist and tie it in a soft bow.

Style No. 2967 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 30, 32, 34, 36, and 38 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 4½ yards of 39 inch material, with 2½ yards of binding.

Get the Child Into Sensible Daily Routine

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

More true stories—following yesterday's:

Spoonful by spoonful they got the cereal into him. "See the little birdie on the edge of the spoon. Here he goes flying around in the air." Spoon waving by grandpa. "Now wait—off he goes. Quick! Let's pop this cereal in before he comes back." A small sweet mouth with pearly teeth opens and closes over a big spoonful of warm cereal. "Ho, ho! Here he is back again, the little birdie." And on went the meal. Morning after morning.

Bedtimes were a veritable riot. First, the suggestion would be met with refusal. Next coaxing would be tried. Then inducements would be offered. And last, commands would be issued. And I give you my word for it, this would be followed by sort of eluding flight. Downstairs he would go crying, "I don't want to go to bed," to the person on his trail. Upstairs he would go again. Often a tantrum and tears would be the windup before the last roundup, as you might say. This was a usual performance, varying a little in form and degree.

And none of it was the child's fault; he was really a darling; really lovable and very intelligent. But he was the recipient by turns of being either completely ignored as his parents went about their affairs, or of being "shown off," or overwhelmed with love, kisses, and gifts. Besides he lived a very irregular life since the hours of the household were, to say the least, bizarre.

This sounds like an extreme case, but many children meet the simple daily routines of eating, sleeping, dressing, and toileting with defiance, pouting, disobedience, or dramatics through no fault of their own. Yet the remedy is simple, and prevention simpler still. Yesterday's [Sunday's] article described how success can be achieved, through a consistent, serene, taken-for-granted attitude. One thing I didn't mention yesterday which is a practical help in this matter: it is regularity. Children are creatures of habit and when they're little fall into established ways and hours very easily.

According to CULBERTSON

BRIDGE CRIME.

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

In discussing and criticizing errors of play, experts draw a sharp dividing line between errors of judgment and all other types. They realize that it is unfair to "charge" a player with a definite "bull" when, as a matter of fact, he may have had the closest sort of choice to make. When the mistake is a demonstrable one, however, it is quite another matter. Failure to count to thirteen is a standard, never-changing bridge crime. The true bridge addict ranks it far worse than wife beating, for example, although slightly short of homicide.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	Pass	1 heart	Pass
2 clubs	Pass	2 hearts	Pass
3 clubs	Pass	3 diamonds	Pass
4 diamonds	Pass	5 diamonds	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

South's four diamond bid was outrageously optimistic. Up to this point his partner had shown no particular strength except in the heart suit, the last material that South would be able to use. South should have feared losing three spade tricks off the reel, and he had no assurance that his two five card suits would come in solidly.

Due to the not unusual combination of good luck and horrible defense, however, the overbid contract had surprising success.

West made what appeared from his hand the best opening lead, namely, the singleton heart. Dummy's ten was played and East, for no reason under the sun, put up his ace. East, of course, could count all thirteen hearts. That he should have given up control at the first trick is hard to understand. Declarer ruffed and laid down the ace of diamonds, then a low diamond to the king. The king, queen, and jack of hearts permitted the discard of declarer's three spades. The club jack then was led and the queen gobbled up. East was permitted to ruff the ten with his jack of trump, but the rest of the tricks then were declarer's, since West's nine of clubs easily could be ruffed away.

Had East properly conserved his heart ace at the first trick, declarer, who, of course, could not dream that the heart suit was divided so fantastically, would have discarded a spade and then, undoubtedly, would have led the heart king through East. The latter should, of course, duck for the second time. Declarer would throw a spade and West would ruff, returning a spade. The king would win for the defenders' second trick, and now a low heart would put declarer in serious difficulties. To ruff with an honor would establish a sure trump trick for East, and also embarrass declarer in the establishment of his club suit. To ruff low would be to concede West's eight of trumps. Thus, East's inexcusable play of the heart ace cost the defenders at least two tricks and a great many points.

Decorative Effects as Aid for the Ill to Get Hospital Tests

Modern and pleasing decoration and draperies as an aid to recovery of the ill will be given a practical test at St. Luke's hospital. The opening of the entire seventeenth floor of the main building with twenty-two rooms completely redecorated is scheduled for Wednesday.

Mrs. John W. Gary, president of the Woman's board; Mrs. I. Newton Perry, and Miss Cornelia Conger have explained that the decorative scheme of the rooms has been based on the psychology of cheerful surroundings for the ill. It is felt that environment has much to do with the speediness of recovery.

Knights of Columbus Pick Cincinnati for Convention

New York, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The supreme board of directors of the Knights of Columbus today designated Cincinnati, O., for the 56th annual international convention of the organization, to be held in the week beginning Aug. 14.

History Turned Back in N. Y. at Benefit Play for Needy Musicians

New York, Jan. 23.—[Special.]—History was turned back to the middle of the 18th century in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria tonight when "A Night in the Palace of Prince Esterhazy" was presented by members of society and a group of distinguished musicians. With Mrs. Vincent Astor as its guiding spirit, the "musical soirée" was given for one of her favorite philanthropies—the musicians' emergency fund—which has brought renewed hope, financial assistance and other aid to musicians in straitened circumstances.

During the many weeks of preparation of Gretchen Damrosch Finletter's two act musical play an extensive search was made for appropriate costumes—among costumers, in musicians' and family collection.

Before the play dinner was served to the hundreds of subscribers—representatives of society, music and other fields of art—at tables taxing the capacity of the ballroom, and in the boxes on three sides of the room.

Lovely Home Enhances Any Woman's Chic

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.]

There's a perfect gold mine of charm to be built into the home setting. This tip is offered as a little reminder about this time of year, with housewives looking askance at furnishings they wish could be replaced by something better available in the February sales, perhaps.

It is our conviction that a charming woman is seen at advantage when reflected against a home background of taste and beauty. As has been said countless times, it isn't money that creates this type of background beauty. You can, perhaps, make it with money and a good interior decorator, but you also can achieve charm, warmth, grace, and poise without great expenditure.

We don't intend to discuss home decoration, as that is another's sphere. We wish merely to remind women that they can create a beauty glow for themselves in home surroundings that reveal good taste. We also suggest the study of interiors as a grand hobby for any housewife. It's one art in which we believe most women feel they are fairly proficient. Yet, one enters so many homes in which there is lacking the artist's touch or even ordinary good taste.

Our object is only to suggest study of color, line and arrangement. Women study magazines and newspaper columns for hints on dress and other personal decorative items. The same can be done about that home setting. All women have to do, it seems, is to become conscious of a beauty motif, and they're after it pronto.

It was a suggestion about flower arrangement, advanced by stage and screen comedienne Helen Broderick, that set us on the decorating path. We thought of how flower arranging bespeaks the taste and charm of the woman in her home. Here, again, is a lovely field for study—just as a hobby, but a hobby that will bring you happy results. Miss Broderick's suggestion concerned the common fault of using too many flowers in one bowl. Seeing each bloom in its perfection, rather than a bewildering mass of color, is her idea of a charming flower motif. She also suggests that one study colors under artificial light to avoid disappointment, because many pale flowers fade in candlelight or under the electric glow.

METHODISTS QUIT SENDING FOOD TO SOVIET MEMBERS

Former Evanston Pastor Tells of Persecutions.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Jan. 23.—American Methodists have discontinued sending packages of food and clothing and money orders to Methodists in Russia because of the persecution of the recipients of such gifts by the soviet authorities. Bishop Raymond Wade, who arrived in Riga to preside at a conference of the Latvian Methodist church, made the disclosure today.

Bishop Wade.

The bishop, who lived for a long time in Evanston, Ill., now makes his headquarters in Stockholm. He supervises Methodist activities in Scandinavia, the Baltic states, southern Europe, and North Africa.

Exile Frequent Punishment.

The bolshevik persecution of Christianity during the last twenty years has almost succeeded in annihilating Methodism in Russia, Bishop Wade reported. The attempts of Christians abroad to help believers in Russia are doing more harm than good, he said, because arrest by the GPU [secret police] and exile sometimes of entire families frequently followed the receipt of a foreign food package.

THE TRIBUNE correspondent also was informed that American Baptist organizations have taken similar action.

Gains in Other Countries.

The sufferings of Christians in Russia have helped to intensify the religious feeling of countries bordering Russia, the bishop said. He reported that he has dedicated two new Methodist churches since the beginning of the year, and that membership is making steady gains in many countries.

Latvian officials attended special services celebrating the adoption of a new Methodist church constitution, marking government acknowledgment of Methodism's success in Latvia.

YANK HELD 4 DAYS IN NAZI JAIL HAS TO PAY FOR FOOD

New York, Jan. 23.—[Special.]—A New York musician who was held in a German prison as a spy for four days because he took pictures of a Berlin railroad station, returned home today. Not only was he charged for his meals in jail, he said, but he was given a bill for the expense of gathering evidence against him. He is Fred Zomzely, 30 years old, a Columbia graduate. "I was taking a snapshot of the Lehrter Ehrnhof, a Berlin railroad station," he said.

"Suddenly I felt a gun in my ribs and I was carted off to jail and was refused permission to call the American consul or relatives in Berlin. After four days in jail I was arraigned before a magistrate and fined $25."

U. S. Observers Pleased with New Philippine Army

MANILA, Jan. 23.—(AP)—High United States and Philippine military authorities announced today joint war maneuvers, concluded yesterday, were considered highly successful and proved the merits of the new commonwealth army. An official announcement said a Philippine army of 15,000 young trainees under 100 regular and 300 reserve officers accomplished the task assigned it—that of theoretically stopping an invading force three times as great numerically and six times as strong in equipment.

JOHN O. SEYS, CUB VICE PRESIDENT, DIES OF PNEUMONIA

ILL ONE WEEK; SERVED CLUB FOR 20 YEARS

Began Career as Sports Writer.

John O. Seys, vice president of the Chicago Cubs Baseball club, died at 9:30 o'clock last night in the Edgewater hospital. He had been ill of pneumonia for one week.

Mr. Seys, who would have been 67 years old next April, became ill a week ago yesterday while attending a dinner party. He was removed to the hospital on Tuesday and when his illness was diagnosed as pneumonia the next day was placed in an oxygen tent. His condition was complicated by a heart ailment. He showed a slight improvement on Saturday, but suffered a relapse yesterday morning and fell into a coma.

Mr. Seys, a former newspaper man, had been connected with the Cubs for more than twenty years, for nine years as traveling secretary and for the last eleven years as vice president. His home was at 2221 Farwell avenue.

The body was taken to the undertaking parlor at 5501 North Asshland avenue. Funeral arrangements will be made today.

Born in Nokomis, Ill.

Mr. Seys was born in Nokomis, Ill., on April 20, 1871. After graduating from high school he spent a year at the University of Michigan, then entered newspaper work. After five years with the Fort Wayne, Ind., Press he joined the staf of the Chicago News, which he served for sixteen years.

While a member of the News staf Mr. Seys became one of the country's best known turf experts and covered, among other big races, many of the annual American Derbies at the old Washington Park track.

Mr. Seys also covered for the News the burning of San Francisco following the earthquake April 18, 1906.

He covered the spring training trip of the Cubs at Tampa, Fla., in 1913, although not a regular baseball writer at the time. A year later the Federal league had made its bid for big league recognition and Mr. Seys accompanied the Chifeds, Chicago's representatives in the new circuit, to their training base at Shreveport, La. He continued in the röle of traveling baseball writer until the Federal league was absorbed by the majors after the 1915 season.

Joined Cubs in 1917.

In December of 1917 Mr. Seys abandoned sports writing and became a member of the Cubs' executive staf. Shortly after this Charley Williams, Cub traveling secretary, resigned, and Mr. Seys succeeded to the post.

He piloted Cub teams around the country from the spring of 1918 to the close of the 1926 season when his place was taken by Robert Lewis, present road secretary. Mr. Seys was promoted to vice president and placed in charge of the Wrigley Field concessions.

Mr. Seys is survived by his widow, Winifred Tichborne Seys; Hazel Seys, daughter by a previous marriage; a sister, Mrs. Mary Whitten of Pasadena, Cal., and a brother who lives in St. Louis.

In the Wake of the News

SIXTEEN of the twenty-two young men who played on the eastern team in the Shriners' charity football game in San Francisco New Year's day are Catholics. . . . There's a sermon somewhere in that item. . . . Morris Kirksey, the former Stanford sprinter upon whom Charley Paddock had the Indian sign, is a prominent California psychiatrist, in charge of the Stockton, Cal., sanitarium. . . . Kirksey and Paddock met thirty-two times, with the latter always winning, but seldom by more than inches. . . . Both were born in Texas, both were brought to the same town—Eagle Rock, Cal.—about the same time, and both entered college at the same time, Paddock going to Southern California and Kirksey to Stanford. . . . Emmett Ormsby, who will begin his sixteenth season as an American league umpire this spring, already has started conditioning work. . . . Clad in heavy woolens, he plays several rounds of handball five days a week at the Englewood Y. M. C. A. . . .

After several prints of a crowd picture at a recent Miami tennis match had been distributed the publicity department discovered a gentleman in the center of the photo wrapped in an overcoat with a blanket around his feet shivering in the Florida sun. . . . The man was A. A. Stagg, and since he is athletic director at the College of the Pacific the publicitors suspected a California plot against Florida climate. . . . It was learned that Stagg was suffering from a severe cold, but the pictures were recalled, nevertheless. . . . Mr. and Mrs. Walter C. Kennedy of New York are America's No. 1 hocky fans. . . . They haven't missed a game in Madison Square Garden since 1929, always occupying the same seats in the front row of the promenade. . . . Kennedy has a scar on his chin where he was hit by a flying puck five years ago. . . . A bitter fight is expected to ensue over winter dates for the 1938-'39 season between Santa Anita and the new Hollywood Turf club. . . . Hollywood's first meeting will open on June 11. . . .

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The periodically surprising Blackhawks, who are happiest scoring upsets when the outlook seems darkest, last night in Chicago Stadium gave the form players a terrific jolt by outplaying and beating the league leading Boston Bruins, 3 to 2.

The game was a happy demonstration of the whimsies of hocky. Last Sunday night, for instance, the Toronto Maple Leafs whipped the Hawks, 7 to 2. And Saturday night the Bruins beat the Leafs, 9 to 1. Son, kindly throw this arithmetic book in the ash can!

The Hawks deserved their first victory of the year over the league leaders, but they had their moments of anxiety, all of which served simply to make victory sweeter for the 13,000 assembled faithful.

They Start Out Right.

The Hawks hopped off to a 2 to 0 lead in the first period. Paul Thompson scored in 4:46 and Alex Levinsky in 11:46. Each was assisted by Art Wiebe.

The Bruins tied it up in the second period. Bauer scored unassisted in 4:55, while Louie Trudell was doing time and Gordon Pettinger, on an assist by Bill Cowley, tied the score at 11:08. Technically the Hawks were fully manned when Pettinger tied the score, but actually they were shorthanded, for Wiebe was wandering to the Hawk bench, thinking, perhaps, he had been relieved.

The Hawks' third period zeal clicked in 12:55 when Trudell scored on assists by Mush March and Johnny Gottselig. The Chicagoans remained a game and a half out of the American division cellar, the tail-end Detroit Red Wings having defeated the New York Americans, also by 3 to 2.

The setback was only the seventh suffered by the Bruins this season. They have won 18 and tied 2. It was the eighth victory for the Hawks, who have lost 14 and tied 6. It was the first Chicago triumph since Jan. 10, when the Hawks beat the Montreal Maroons.

Hawks Get a Couple.

Brother Tiny Thompson did all of his usually ample best to prevent Brother Paul from turning on the red lamp with the first goal of the game. Chicago's Thompson did it, however, assisted by Wiebe on a combination of accurate and whizful shooting. Shortly before the five minute mark in the first period Thompson and Wiebe lined up for a zig-zag skate down the ice, first one and then the other doing the puck shoving. As the pair approached the Bruin cage Wiebe passed to Thompson at his left. Paul picked up the rubber cleanly and fired. The puck went past his brother inside the near goal post, at about the top of Tiny's boots.

The second Hawk goal was an all

Save a Few Yards for the All-Stars, Riley

Riley Smith, former Alabama and The Tribune All-Star quarter back, who directed the Washington Redskins to the world's championship, makes eleven yards and a first down against the Bears in Dallas, Tex., yesterday. The Redskins won, 13 to 0. The Bear (No. 4) being taken out by Ed Justice at the right is Danny Fortmann. Just ahead of Smith is Pug Rentner (No. 7), who made the tackle. Smith and Justice will be in Chicago next August to help the Redskins against the All-Stars in The Tribune's game.

FELLER TO SIGN CONTRACT WITH BONUS CLAUSES

Van Meter, Ia., Jan. 23.—(AP)—Bob Feller, the Cleveland Indians' young strikeout king, today said he had reached an agreement with the American league club on terms for his 1938 contract.

Feller returned the first contract mailed to him last week with the explanation that he was "not a holdout" but wanted to have several minor details in his contract adjusted. Bob said he would sign and return immediately the revised contract.

Attendance, Victories Figured In.

Feller refused to divulge the exact terms of his 1938 contract, but expressed satisfaction with its contents and indicated he would be well rewarded for his efforts if he won his share of games and the home attendance at Cleveland was good.

"My contract with the Indians has several provisions not included in most major league contracts," Feller said. "The home attendance and my ability to win games will be measured in my salary checks for this year."

Sum Placed at $15,000.

It was generally believed, however, the contract would call for a guaranteed sum approximating $15,000.

Feller won nine games and lost seven for Cleveland last year. He was handicapped during the early part of the season by a sore arm.

Feller is spending the winter on his parents' farm home here.

Northwestern Solves Victory Problem: Just Keeps Scoring

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Last Monday morning Coach Franklin Cappon and Michigan's basketball players, returning from their first defeat of the conference season at Wisconsin, met Coach Dutch Lonborg and Northwestern's Wildcats, returning from their first defeat at Purdue, in Chicago's Roosevelt road station.

Dutch and Cappy shook hands, exchanged condolences.

"This basketball's a funny game," Cappy said and grinned. "You hit or you don't."

"Yeah," Dutch agreed, "the only thing that's certain is each team plays twelve games."

Wolverines Fail to Hit.

Saturday night these rivals, Michigan and Northwestern, played for the conference leadership. Each scored twelve field goals. Northwestern won, 30 to 29. And 6,000 fans—nearly 2,000 more were turned away—who watched that battle undoubtedly will agree that in basketball, you hit or you don't.

Michigan had a dozen shots in the last two minutes while trailing by one point. Two long shots previously had suddenly revived Wolverine hopes, but thereafter Michigan failed. The ball rolled off the hoop or caromed inaccurately from the board. Any one toss might have won.

Northwestern, wisely protecting its margin, fought furiously to keep possession of the ball and to cover Harry John Townsend and Jim Rae of Michigan as they pivoted for one hand shots. The Wildcats scored a deserved victory and by that conquest now have compiled a conference record as astonishingly successful as their nonconference schedule was disappointing.

They're Better This Year.

First of the conference quintets to complete half of its games, the Wildcats, with five victories, already have exceeded last year's record. Important factors have been aggressive defensive play, high team morale, and adherence to offensive plays to create scoring chances rather than "leave-it-to-chance" fast breaks and individual effort.

Michigan, on evidence presented Saturday night, is one of the slowest teams in the conference, but, because of the height of Townsend, Rae, Thomas, and Beebe, is dangerous offensively.

Northwestern's offensive weakness was inability to score from the free throw line. Ten free throws were missed, Capt. Fred Trenkle missing five of these.

Michigan meets the revived Ohio State team tonight at Columbus. Two weeks ago the Wolverines whipped Ohio State, 38 to 28. Since then the Buckeyes have defeated Iowa, 48 to 29, and Saturday night trounced the faltering Illini, 46 to 26. Tonight's game is important, for each has lost two games, and each still has the Purdue series ahead. The Boilermakers still are public choice to win the 1938 championship.

The only other game this week is Chicago's appearance Saturday at Minnesota. Although beaten three times in conference play, the Maroons upset Loyola university, 44 to 29, Saturday night and before the season is over may end the long string of Big Ten defeats now in the third year.

Dallas, Tex., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—Sammy Baugh and his Washington Redskin teammates established the legitimacy of their December victory over the Chicago Bears in the National Professional Football league championship game today by defeating the Chicagoans, 13 to 0, before 5,000 in the Cotton bowl.

Playing on a slippery field, the Redskins took command late in the third period, after a listless first half, and scored two touchdowns. They made twelve first downs to the Bears' four.

Baugh who passed the all-stars to victory over the Green Bay Packers in the Chicago Tribune's game last September and who returns to the game with his teammates next August again was Washington's chief performer. Cliff Battles, his running mate, and Don Irwin, former Colgate full back, also stood out on offense. Keith Molesworth and Ray Nolting were the Bears' offensive stars with Dick Plasman and George Musso leading the defense.

Kickoff in Rain.

A six day rainy spell, which had hindered the preparations of both teams, was climaxed by a hard thunderstorm shortly before game time. The huge tarpaulin, which had protected the field for a week, had just been removed as the storm broke and the gridiron soon became muddy. Soon after the kickoff the clouds lifted.

Neither club threatened in the first half and the game developed into a punting duel between Baugh and Nolting. The Bears were unable to penetrate beyond the Redskins' 37 yard line in this half and Washington got only as far as the 33 yard line.

Soon after the second half kickoff, the Bears got the first scoring chance when Baugh's quick kick was blocked and Tackle Russ Thompson recovered on the Redskins' 29 yard line. Feathers picked up three yards through the line and when two line plays failed, Tackle Joe Stydahar missed a field goal from the 38 yard line.

Baugh to Millner Again.

The Redskins launched their first drive soon afterwards. After Beattie Feathers' pass had been intercepted Baugh's low punt was killed by Wayne Millner on the Bears' 3 yard line. Feathers, kicking from behind his goal line, punted out to Battles who returned fifteen yards to the 30 yard line. Battles picked up three yards and Baugh added another three. Then Baugh waded through the Bear line for eight yards and a first down on the Bears' 16 yard line.

Charles Malone dropped one of Baugh's hard passes behind the goal line. Baugh was smothered for a three yard loss. On the next play he passed to Malone, who was run out of bounds on the 4 yard line. Three line smashes lost two yards, then Baugh passed to Millner for a touchdown. The third quarter ended just before Riley Smith added the extra point from placement.

G. Smith Goes 44 Yards.

Late in the fourth period George Smith, husky Redskin center, intercepted Molesworth's pass on the Bears' 44 yard line and returned it for a touchdown. He was tackled from behind on the 5 yard line, but skidded across for the score. Riley Smith missed the place kick for the extra point.

Stratton Joins Holdouts; Asks $12,500, Bonus

Greeneville, Tex., Jan. 23.—(AP)—Monty Stratton, Chicago White Sox pitcher, became a holdout today.

Stratton said he refused terms offered by Owner Louis Comiskey and would ask $12,500 with a bonus.

"I expect to get along fine with Comiskey and Manager Jim Dykes, but I believe I am worth more than they offered me," he said.

NEBERZ TAKES SENIOR HONORS IN ICE DERBIES

Club Title Is Captured by Northwest S. C.

Tony Neberz of the C. Y. O. won men's honors in the Olympic Skating club's races yesterday at Garfield park, by taking the 220 yard dash and the three-quarter mile and placing third in the two mile event for a total of seventy points.

The Northwest Skating club won the meet, however, with 590 against the C. Y. O.'s 320 points.

Neberz put himself in fourth place in the season's individual men's standing as a result of his performances and Bob Heckenbach of the Northwest club, who was second in the day's point column, boosted himself into second place in the season's records. Heckenbach won the men's title in the 1937 Silver Skates Derbies.

Bob Bides His Time.

Heckenbach won the two mile after staying back of the field most of the way. With only a half lap to go he stepped out to overtake Cornie Ewerts, his Northwest club teammate, and Neberz. Heckenbach won in a spurt by ten yards, with Ewerts second, and Neberz, third, in the fast time of 6:54.2.

In the three-quarter mile and 220 Neberz stayed near the rear of the field and turned on the speed in the stretch to win. The three-quarter mile was a thriller, with Heckenbach and Bob Sherman of Northwest pressing the C. Y. O. ace all the way. Neberz came up to beat Heckenbach in the last twenty yards by less than a stride. Sherman was a close third.

Girls Do Their Part.

The girls of the Northwest and C. Y. O. teams played an important part. In the girls' junior event three C. Y. O. entrants took all three places. Bunny Lawler, the 15 year old star, who hasn't lost a race in her class in two seasons, won the 440 yard event by thirty yards from teammates, Shirley Klaris and Eleanor Friesinger, respectively.

Shirley Jane Burnett of the Northwest club beat two teammates by thirty yards in the juvenile 440. Sue Frank and Shirley Shultz were second and third, respectively.

defense production which was produced exactly seven minutes after the first. After some milling about the Bruin cage Wiebe passed to Levinsky who rammed home the tally from close in. Goalie Thompson flopped full length across the mouth of the cage, but the puck had passed under him before he hit the ice. The time was 11:46.

Bruins Fight Back.

In the fourth minute of the second period Trudell was put off for checking Shore into the boards and the Bruins renewed the power stuff, to be rewarded in 4:55 on an unassisted goal by Bauer.

The Bruins tied the score in 11:08 of the second period. Cowley took the puck in for a shot which Karakas kicked back. Pettinger then picked up the rebound and beat Goalie Mike with the goal that made it 2 all.

After the first five minutes of the third period the play developed no advantage for either team until 12:55 when Trudell put the Chicagoans ahead.

March got the puck in his own defense zone and teamed with Gottselig on a charge down the rink into the Bruin defense zone where Trudell cut in front of the cage. Louie let loose a hard one from close in that was too swift for the Bruin goalie. March and Gottselig drew assists.

All That Ails Paul Dean Is Brother Dizzy

St. Petersburg, Fla., Jan. 23.—(AP)—H. J. [Doc] Weaver, St. Louis Cardinals' trainer, said today a complex kept Paul Dean from becoming one of the greatest pitchers in baseball.

"Potentially," said Weaver, who has looked after the Cardinals for eleven years, "Paul is one of the finest specimens of pitching material it has been my pleasure to see in many years of association with baseball talent."

"In fact, when Paul is right he has more on the ball than his brother, Dizzy."

Paul Has the Stuff.

Weaver, here to get the Cardinals' training camp ready, explained he thought the younger member of the "me and Paul" combination is suffering from an inferiority complex.

"They've built Dizzy up to the sky," observed Weaver, "and Paul has tried too hard to reach the peak attained by his brother. His trouble isn't in his arm, it's in his head.

"He has everything a good pitcher needs. He has the build, the arm, and the head. But he also has a brother."

Weaver explained he did not mean Dizzy was shunting his brother into the background.

If They Come Through.

"Dizzy is a great pitcher. In my estimation he has more on the ball than any current pitcher in the business, and I've seen them all. But Paul, when he's right, is just as good."

Weaver said he had to "work with the screwiest ball club in either league."

"All I can say about the Cardinals' prospects is this," he added. "If Dizzy has a good year and Paul returns to form, the Cards are a standout in the National league."

Sparta Defeats All-Stars, 6 to 2; Maccabees Win, 4-0

BY OFFSIDE.

The Sparta soccer team continued undefeated when it whipped the Chicago League All-Stars, 6 to 2, yesterday at Sparta stadium before one of the largest crowds of the season.

Sparta led throughout, stepping off to a 1 to 0 advantage in the first three minutes on Munro's penalty shot and adding another goal two minutes later, Vicek scoring from fifteen yards out.

The All-Stars cut the advantage to 2 to 1 after twenty minutes of play as Hedley beat Silovsky from a spot kick, but Sparta increased its lead to 4 to 1 before half time on a pair of goals by McDermott.

The All-Stars tried desperately in the early part of the first half to cut the Sparta advantage, and midway through the period succeeded in reducing the margin to 4 to 2 on a goal by Riley. Sparta then took control again, Trimmell and Absil beating Fekkers for the final scores of the contest.

The Maccabees defeated the Swedish-Americans, 4 to 0, yesterday in an interleague match at Kuppenheimer stadium. After twenty-five minutes of scorless maneuvering McGee counted for the Maccabees. They made it 2 to 0 near the end of the half on another goal by McGee. The Swedes muffed numerous opportunities to score in the second period, while the Maccabees were adding to their total on successful shots by Wright and Al Waldron.

In an exhibition game the Schwaben Reserves defeated the Sparta Seconds, 4 to 2, at Sparta stadium.

CIESARS DEFEAT AKRON FIVE, 47-40; WOODEN IS STAR

Johnny Wooden, former Purdue star, led the Ciesar All-Americans to a 47 to 40 victory over the Akron Firestones in a National Professional Basketball league game yesterday at the Whiting Community center.

Wooden scored six baskets and five free throws for seventeen points. Vince McGowan, high scorer in the league, counted thirteen points for the All-Americans. Howard Cable of Akron, second in league scoring, failed to sink a field goal under the close guarding of Bill Perrigo. Lineups:

SECOND PHYSICAL TEST TO BE GIVEN AT C.Y.O. TONIGHT

Other Golden Glove Exams Set for Jan. 31, Feb. 4.

The second physical examination for Golden Gloves boxers who wish to compete in any one of the four Chicago sectional tournaments will be held tonight at the Catholic Youth Organization gymnasium, 31 East Congress street. While this examination was scheduled for members of the C. Y. O., any boy who was unable to report last Friday night at Trafton's gym will be examined tonight if he brings his parental consent card.

The examination will be held from 6 until 8 p. m. More than 500 letters were mailed to C. Y. O. contestants by Tom O'Connell, director of C. Y. O. amateur boxing. If any of these boys cannot report tonight he has the right to report at any subsequent physical examination. He cannot be assured, however, of being granted permission to compete in any particular section.

The Golden Gloves officials yesterday set the dates for the other physical examinations. The third examination will be Jan. 31 and the last examination Feb. 4. Both of these will be at Trafton's gymnasium, 180 West Randolph street. The hours again are 6 to 8 p. m.

Entries Close Jan. 30.

Entries for this year's sectional tournaments close at midnight Jan. 30. It will be impossible to accept entries after Jan. 30 because of the time necessary to mail letters to all applicants and because the program for the west sectional must be made up in time for the first bouts on Feb. 9.

The west side tournament will be held at two locations. On Feb. 9 and 10 the boys will compete at the Madison Athletic club, 4717 Madison street. This tournament then will be completed on Feb. 17 and 18 at the Park Casino, Madison and Hamlin. The tournament at the Marigold Gardens opens Feb. 16; the south side tournament opens Feb. 15 and the north side tournament at Loyola university gymnasium Feb. 21.

2,000 Expected to Enter.

More than 2,000 boys are expected to enter the Open and Novice divisions. Thirty-two boys in the Open division will compete in the Tournament of Champions, which will start Feb. 28 at the Stadium. There will be forty-five championship teams from fifteen states in this meet.

All contestants will receive a second physical examination on the night they report for their sectional bouts. These examinations will be held in the afternoon. The bouts will start at 7 o'clock on the first night of each sectional meet.

Thirty-two Novice qualifiers also will survive at the conclusion of the four sectionals. These boys will meet in the semi-finals of the Chicago Novice tournament March 1 at the Stadium and the eight Novice champions of 1938 will be determined March 2.

Van Kempen on Way to Six Day Race on His Bike

Sixty miles of pedaling is the daily diet of Piet Van Kempen, one of the riders who will compete in the six day bicycle race starting Sunday night in the Coliseum.

The pedaling is an attempt to get rid of sea legs which Van Kempen claims hampered him in his recent race in Cleveland, where he and Gerard Debaets finished fourth. Van Kempen, who is acclaimed individual bike champion with 31 victories and who has scored 218 points on a 5-3-2-1 basis, came from Holland to compete in Cleveland. He is sure extra work will give him a better chance in the Chicago race and is pedaling from Cleveland to Chicago.

Van Kempen started his trip yesterday and plans to arrive in Chicago in proper time to rest a day and then start the grind in which each rider covers approximately 200 miles daily.

Van Kempen's chance will depend to some extent on the selection of his partner. George Harvey, manager of the race, now is balancing the teams.

Van Kempen's chance also depends on whether Gustav Kilian and Heinz Vopel, the German pair, continue the pace that has won them so many victories. Many newcomers to Chicago, including Dominik Camastar of Italy, Fernand Wambst of France, Willy Vrooman of Holland, Romigro Saavedra of Argentina, Gottfried Huertgen of Germany, Jackie Gabler of Brooklyn, and Rusty Peden, cousin of Torchy, who comes from Vancouver, Can., also are in the race.

Whiting Hands C.Y.O. Its First Defeat, 3 to 2

Whiting scored three goals in the third period to defeat the C. Y. O. Shamrocks, 3 to 2, in an Amateur Hocky league game in the Arena yesterday. It was the Shamrocks' first defeat of the season. They had won six consecutive games.

In the opening game of the doubleheader the Hornets won over Waukegan, 8 to 2.

The Shamrocks scored both of their goals in the first period, Bill Hodgins and Red Grossman scoring to produce what looked like a safe lead. And it was until the third minute of the third period, when Steve Kornylo scored Whiting's first goal. A minute later Merny Howard tied the score at 2 to 2, a condition which existed until the 17 minute mark, when Topec, assisted by Sweet, scored the third and winning goal for Whiting.

MATHISEN WINS EUROPEAN TITLE IN 1,500 METERS

OSLO, Norway, Jan. 23.—(AP)—Norway won its second European speed skating championship today when Charles Mathisen won the 1,500 meters in 2:27.4. Hans Engnestangen won the 500 meters for Norway yesterday.

Three American skaters were no threats to the winners either in the 1,500 or the 3,000 meter event, which was won by Max Steipl of Austria in 4:53.6.

Leo Freisinger of Chicago, who won the Chicago Tribune Silver Skates intermediate Derby in 1933, led the American delegation in both events, placing sixth in the 3,000 in 4:59 and eighth in the 1,500 in 2:34. George Wallace finished 14th in the longer race in 5:03.1 and 27th in the shorter event in 2:43.8. Marvin Swanson of St. Paul was clocked in 5:13.7 for the 3,000, placing 32d, and 2:44.2 to take 29th place in the 1,500.

FOUR YOUNG MEN, AND AMBITIOUS, TOO, WILL FIGHT

Clash at Marigold in Two Eight Round Bouts.

Tony Zale, Gary middleweight, is paired with Henry Schaft of Des Moines, Ia., and Tony Petroskey, Muskegon, Mich., slugger, with Remo Fernandez of Los Angeles in two bouts of eight rounds each featuring the show tonight at Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street.

All four are battling for recognition as top flight performers. Each has a following won by earlier showings in this city.

Zale, former Golden Gloves sectional winner, has won seven of nine fights since placing himself under the management of Benny Ray last August. Schaft will be making his third Chicago appearance. He held Johnny Barbara to a draw in his debut. In a rematch Barbara won when Schaft suffered an eye cut.

The Petroskey-Fernandez scrap, which involves two sluggers, is a tossup. Emil Campagna, west side heavyweight, will test Benjamin McKinney, colored Evanston newcomer, in one of three bouts at four rounds. Wilbur Van, Green Bay junior lightweight, and Sam Scully clash in a return contest. Van won the decision in the first bout. Eddie [Twin] Helstrom, Rogers Park welterweight, faces Owen Woods.

Jim McMillen will resume wrestling in a one hour match with Ole Olson at White City, 63d street and South Park avenue, this evening. Ruffy Silverstein, Illinois heavyweight title holder, and Jack Conley will entertain in the secondary feature. Ken Fenlon faces Farmer Mack, Buck O'Neill opposes Tony Martini, and Joe Dvorak meets Jack [Bully Boy] Kogut.

Barney Ross will arrive from New York today to confer with his managers, Sam Pian and Art Winch, about defending his welterweight title against Jack Carroll at Sydney, Australia, April 18. Charles Lucas, the promoter, has not yet answered Pian's demand that Ross be paid $52,000, including $7,000 for expenses. Lucas' offer was $45,000.

WHEAT ACREAGE RISES WITH END OF AAA CONTROL

Planting of Winter Crop Sets Record.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Sixteen per cent more farm land now is being used in the production of winter wheat than in the period immediately preceding the government's effort to limit acreage under the agricultural adjustment act.

The two crops seeded since removal of the AAA limits have been the largest, on an acreage basis, on record. The first crop planted after invalidation of the act was in the fall of 1936. The area seeded totaled 57,612,000 acres, the largest acreage ever used in the production of winter wheat. Acreage seeded last fall fell just below the peak of the preceding year, totaling 57,492,000 acres.

Wheat Acreage Expands.

Some expansion in acreage was to be expected after the removal of the AAA limits. The increase, however, was so sharp that the country now is using more of its farm land in production of winter wheat than before the government stepped in to regulate production.

In 1935, when the AAA restrictions were still effective, farmers planted 49,492,000 acres of winter wheat. In the five year period preceding the AAA restrictions [1927-'31] the average annual seeded acreage was 45,290,000.

The figures suggest that the restriction program itself was partly responsible for the big expansion in acreage. The limits on acreage in effect for two years contributed somewhat to the decline in production and depletion of the surplus stocks that had been carried over from earlier bumper seasons.

Drouth, however, was a far more important factor in accomplishing these ends.

Foreign Demand Slackens.

A slackening in foreign demand for wheat last week brought a decline in prices in the Chicago market. The following table shows the range in prices of grain futures for the week:

Continental Oil Expands Newspaper Advertising

The Continental Oil company yesterday announced a 1938 newspaper advertising campaign calling for an increase in space of 17 per cent from the 1937 total. Approximately 1,250 newspapers will receive 66 per cent of all funds that will be spent on consumer advertising, officials of the company said.

Middlemen—Who Are They?

Between the producer of commodities and the ultimate consumer is a long line of middlemen. They are the men or companies engaged in purchasing, transporting, storing, financing, taking risks, rearranging, and selling in connection with the commodity.

They include railroads, shipping, and trucking lines, warehouse operators, wholesalers, jobbers, bankers, commercial houses, insurance companies, salesmen, and retailers. Their functions may overlap in some cases, perhaps resulting in the elimination of one or more of the middlemen or the consolidation of two or more functionaries in one organization. Nearly all of the middlemen named, however, perform some definite service in getting most commodities from the producer to the consumer.

Quite naturally, each of these middlemen expects to make a profit from his part in the process of distribution, and this profit is added to the cost of the commodity as it passes through his hands. All of this increases the final cost to the consumer to a figure which may be far above what the producer received for it.

Year's Profit Is Lower for Clothing Firm

Hart, Schaffner & Marx, clothing manufacturer, yesterday reported net income for the year ended Nov. 30, 1937, of $137,412, or 92 cents a common share on 150,000 shares outstanding. In 1936 net income amounted to $484,405, or $3.40 a share on 142,420 shares.

Mark W. Cresap.

The company in 1937 charged against earnings an item of $90,000 representing liability arising from cancelation of a factory lease.

"More than the usual inventory depreciation was taken," Mark W. Cresap, president, said in a statement to stockholders, "and the entire loss arising therefrom has been applied against operating results for the year. Taxes were $100,000 higher than a year ago and increases in the cost of materials and labor affected profits for the fall season."

The company on Nov. 30, 1937, had inventories valued at $3,154,912, compared with $2,550,204 a year earlier. Total current assets were $8,168,689, against current liabilities of $2,580,119. Earned surplus during the year was increased by $169,455 to $3,474,505, after deducting dividends of $71,517.

EASE TEXAS OIL SHUTDOWN ORDER TO SAVE WELLS

Austin, Tex., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—Some of the 79,000 oil wells in Texas remained in production today, hurriedly saved from compliance with the railroad commission's order to close down on Sundays to cut production. Scores of special permits to keep wells on reduced production to prevent them from being killed by water encroachment were hurriedly granted by the commission. Most of these exceptions to the closing order were for wells in the gulf coast district. These wells, however, will be required to curtail production each day instead of shutting down completely on Sundays.

CHICAGO TRADE DULL, BUT GAIN IS PREDICTED

Business in Chicago was slow last week, according to the Chicago Association of Commerce. The retail turnover for January is expected to run 5 to 10 per cent behind the same month of 1937. Wholesale houses reported a lull in buying with no large conventions of buyers in the city.

Improvement is expected this week.

30 FRUIT SHIPPERS PONDER DEFIANCE OF FEDERAL PRORATION

Weslaco, Tex., Jan. 23.—[Special.]—The United States department of agriculture probably will face a test of its powers in volume control of fruit shipments when such regulations become effective this week, it was learned today. Thirty independent shippers of grapefruit and oranges handling half of the volume of this area met here and decided to fight proration. They discussed proposals either to ignore the proration orders and ship in defiance of them, on the theory that the government would not jail thirty shippers at once, or to shut down.

FARM, INDUSTRY AIDED AS EXPORT TRADE IMPROVES

Foreign Buying Helps Cushion Slump.

New York, Jan. 23.—(AP)—The American farmer and manufacturer have found a welcome prop in sustained export trade since the 1937 business slump in this country.

Ordinarily an outlet for only a small slice of the nation's total business, the foreign market has attracted more attention lately for its relatively heavy takings of cotton, grains, oil, and other important exports.

In cotton, particularly, business observers have noted a striking reversal of trends. Exports of the staple, the No. 1 item of Uncle Sam's foreign trade, have increased about 400,000 bales so far this season over the previous season. In contrast, consumption by domestic mills has dropped sharply.

Imports Are Halted.

The busiest trade in corn since the early post-war years has been helping move some of the big 1937 grain crop abroad.

Corn exports since October are estimated in trade circles at 25,000,000 bushels following a three year lapse during which the United States became a large corn importer. There has been a revival also in wheat exports.

PREPARE FOR NEW PACT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23.—(AP)—The state department has begun preparation of an announcement of intention to negotiate a new trade agreement with Canada.

The announcement and a long list of products on which tarif reductions are under consideration probably will be published this week. The trade agreements section of the state department has compiled the list of products on the basis of the existing agreement and letters and reports submitted by producers since the original notice of "contemplation" of a new agreement was issued Nov. 18.

Steel Output Moves Up as Demand Rises

Steel ingot production rose 1.5 points last week to 30.5 per cent of capacity, the Magazine Steel estimated yesterday. A slight improvement in the demand for steel was noted, consisting mostly of small lot orders for immediate needs, but there has not been sufficient buying to indicate a marked change.

However, an additional slight gain is expected in production this week, Steel said.

"Some steelmakers find January orders slightly better than in December," the magazine said, "part of this being attributed to moderate increases in automotive specifications, which are beginning to assume more importance."

As a partial offset to the gradual improvement in steel buying generally, the agricultural implement industry, one of the sustaining factors in steel consumption last fall, is curtailing its operations somewhat, Steel indicated. The slackening in this line is seasonal, and is not expected to continue long.

After a slow rise for seven successive weeks, Steel's scrap composite price remained unchanged last week at $13.90 a ton, or $1.15 higher than the low point at the end of November.

PUT MORE RAIL CARS, ENGINES IN USE IN '37; ORDERS NOW DROPPING

New York, Jan. 23.—[Special.]—The class 1 railroads placed on the rails last year 75,058 freight cars which they bought or manufactured or rebuilt in their own shops, the Association of American Railroads announced today. This was the largest number since 1930 and was 31,117 more than in 1936. Class 1 railroads also put in service 373 steam locomotives in 1937, the most for any year since 1930. Eighty-seven were put in service in 1936.

However, new equipment on order Jan. 1 showed a decline. Freight cars on order on Jan. 1 last numbered 7,947, compared with 12,566 on Dec. 1, 1937, and 25,592 on Jan. 1, 1937. Steam locomotives on order Jan. 1 numbered 131, against 156 a month before and 297 a year earlier.

'NO MORE LAWS NOW,' C. OF C. LEADER PLEADS

Davis Offers Plan to Build Confidence.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 23.—(AP)—George H. Davis, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, called today for "assurance" that no additional laws regulating business would be passed at this session of congress.

George H. Davis.

In a statement sent to the senate unemployment committee he said:

"The real cause of the present recession is lack of confidence in the future, caused accumulatively by the passage of laws culminating in the undistributed profits tax and the threat of the wages and hours bill."

Outlines a Plan.

There is no question in the minds of business men, he said, that these steps would restore confidence:

1. Repeal of the undivided profits tax.
2. A sharp modification in the amount of capital gains tax.
3. Liberalization of the security exchange and commodity exchange rules to provide more liquid markets.
4. Assurance that, at this session at least, there will be no additional laws passed further regulating business, such as the wage-hour bill.

Precipitate action by congress to develop new regulations would be "futile," he said.

Cites Farmers' Problem.

Stressing the importance of employment in agricultural districts, Davis said some midwestern farmers had found it "impossible to get help required, due to fear, real or imaginary, upon the part of WPA workers that if they left the rolls for a few weeks it would be impossible for them to get back."

"While I know that efforts have been made by WPA authorities to see that men are released for farm and other seasonal work when needed, the results have been far from satisfactory," Davis declared.

"It would seem that one of the major contributions to the unemployment relief situation would be the clarification of these regulations."

TRUCK CONTROL HEARINGS TO BE HELD THIS WEEK

Legislative Group Seeks Views on New Law.

BY HAL FOUST.

A legislative commission this week will continue its efforts to learn what regulations should be enacted to govern the operation of 250,000 trucks and trailers registered in Illinois. Hearings are scheduled for tomorrow, Wednesday, and Thursday in the Morrison hotel.

In twenty-five hearings in twelve cities to date the legislators have learned that there are urgent demands for regulation and fears as to what form this regulation might take.

"It is the first time in Illinois," said the chairman, Senator Louis J. Menges [D., East St. Louis], "that there has been a comprehensive survey of the commercial trafic on our highways.

"Of 1,500 witnesses who have been heard, about 90 per cent have said truck regulation should be divorced from the commerce commission.

"A majority has agreed that equirements for safety and for public liability are desirable. There is no agreement among the witnesses on any rate fixing policy."

Tomorrow morning the commission will hear from insurance companies covering trucks and trucked freight. In the afternoon common and contract carrier companies have been invited to appear.

STOCKS DRIFT DOWN IN WEEK OF DULL TRADE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 23.—[Special.]—Prices of shares drifted lower in dull and inactive trading on the New York Stock exchange last week, reflecting uncertainty in trading circles as to the chances of an early recovery in business. Losses in the active list ranged from 1 to 3 points, erasing the gains of the previous week. Rails were among the weakest issues.

The snail-like pace of trading was one noticeable characteristic. On not a single day did the total turnover amount to as much as a million reach a million shares.

All important groups of stocks worked lower. As measured by the Dow-Jones index, the industrials slipped 4.31 points, the carriers declined 2.55, and the utility average was off 1.17.

In the bond market the recent rise was halted and most of the rail issues took heavy losses. Utilities sagged, but low yield corporate liens held fairly steady. United States government obligations made new highs in midweek, but later slipped a little.

The Jewel Tea company yesterday reported that sales for the 52 weeks ended Dec. 31, 1937, totaled $23,184,922, compared with sales of $20,717,296 for the 53 weeks ended Dec. 31, 1936, an increase of 11.9 per cent.

Revere Copper and Brass, Inc.

Investors' Guide: Will you kindly give me any information you may have available on Revere Copper and Brass company?—L. T. H.

Answer: Revere Copper and Brass, Inc., is an important producer of brass, copper, bronze, and alloy products used in the automotive, building, electrical, and other industries. The company has ten fabricating plants in the east and middle west.

Sales and profits of the company expanded sharply in 1936, due to general industrial recovery. The improvement lasted through the second quarter of 1937. Although there was recession in the third quarter of 1937, profits for nine months ended Sept. 30 aggregated $2,277,241, or $2.11 a common share, compared with $1,413,956, or 39 cents a share, in the corresponding period of the preceding year. The company has not yet issued its earnings report for 1937. The record of sales and earnings in recent years follows:

	Sales.	Net income.	Earned com. shr.
1936	$37,109,485	$2,023,807	$ .80
1935	25,903,390	425,555	*4.47
1934	22,529,578	1,011,101	†1.43
1933	15,501,439	406,101	*4.27
1932	11,871,175	‡2,933,923	$9.81

*On preferred. †On class A. ‡Deficit.

In November, 1936, stockholders approved a capital readjustment plan designed to eliminate dividend arrears on the company's 7 per cent preferred stock. Under the plan each share of 7 per cent preferred and accrued dividends to Aug. 1, 1936, were exchangeable for 1½ shares of new 5¼ per cent cumulative preferred stock of $100 par value. The plan called for reduction from 200,000 to 95,176 shares in authorized 7 per cent preferred and reduction in authorized class A shares from 1,000,000 to 998,174 shares. There are 150,000 shares of the 5¼ per cent preferred shares and 3,000,000 common shares authorized.

As of Sept. 30, 1937, 126,902 combined preferred, 225,090 class A, and 522,330 common shares were outstanding. Plans were under consideration during 1937 for offering a large block of class A stock for sale to the public, but the plan was not carried out.

Dividends are now being maintained on the preferred issues. The last class A dividend was in 1931, when a total of $1 was paid. No common dividends have been disbursed since the company was incorporated late in 1928.

The preferred issues must be regarded as somewhat speculative. The class A and common shares are more speculative.

Revere Copper and Brass, Inc.

Investors' Guide: Will you kindly give me any information you may have available on Revere Copper and Brass company?—L. T. H.

Answer: Revere Copper and Brass, Inc., is an important producer of brass, copper, bronze, and alloy products used in the automotive, building, electrical, and other industries. The company has ten fabricating plants in the east and middle west.

Sales and profits of the company expanded sharply in 1936, due to general industrial recovery. The improvement lasted through the second quarter of 1937. Although there was recession in the third quarter of 1937, profits for nine months ended Sept. 30 aggregated $2,277,241, or $2.11 a common share, compared with $1,413,956, or 39 cents a share, in the corresponding period of the preceding year. The company has not yet issued its earnings report for 1937. The record of sales and earnings in recent years follows:

	Sales.	Net income.	Earned com. shr.
1936	$37,109,485	$2,023,807	$ .80
1935	25,903,390	425,555	*4.47
1934	22,529,578	1,011,101	†1.43
1933	15,501,439	406,101	*4.27
1932	11,871,175	‡2,933,923	$9.81

*On preferred. †On class A. ‡Deficit.

In November, 1936, stockholders approved a capital readjustment plan designed to eliminate dividend arrears on the company's 7 per cent preferred stock. Under the plan each share of 7 per cent preferred and accrued dividends to Aug. 1, 1936, were exchangeable for 1½ shares of new 5¼ per cent cumulative preferred stock of $100 par value. The plan called for reduction from 200,000 to 95,176 shares in authorized 7 per cent preferred and reduction in authorized class A shares from 1,000,000 to 998,174 shares. There are 150,000 shares of the 5¼ per cent preferred shares and 3,000,000 common shares authorized.

As of Sept. 30, 1937, 126,902 combined preferred, 225,090 class A, and 522,330 common shares were outstanding. Plans were under consideration during 1937 for offering a large block of class A stock for sale to the public, but the plan was not carried out.

Dividends are now being maintained on the preferred issues. The last class A dividend was in 1931, when a total of $1 was paid. No common dividends have been disbursed since the company was incorporated late in 1928.

The preferred issues must be regarded as somewhat speculative. The class A and common shares are more speculative.
